NAZIS SAY STRUGGLE BEFORE LENINGRAD IS GROWING IN VIOLENCE

Authorized Spokesmen Conceded Old Czarist Capital Still Has Outlet Through the German-Finnish Siege Ring, Across Lake Ladoga, But Insist That 1,000,000 Troops Are Entrapped

NORTHERN FRONT IS DRENCHED BY STORMS

By the Associated Press

High German quarters, reversing earlier assertions that Leningrad and its 1,000,000 Red Army defenders were doomed to quick surrender, indicated today that Adolf Hitler's invasion forces now might decide to shell or starve the old czarist capital into submission.

Conceding that the Russians were making a bitter stand, with the bloody struggle increasing in violence hour by hour, Nazi quarters hinted that the German siege armies may not even attempt to storm the city.

With Nazi troops reported within 15 miles of Leningrad at the nearest point, authorized German spokesmen acknowledged, too, that the city still had an outlet through the German-Finnish siege ring — across Lake Ladoga to the east.

German military commentators, declaring there would be no unnecessary sacrifice of Nazi troops to gain a swift triumph at Leningrad, complained bitterly that the Russians in retreat were leaving their trail sown with land mines. In the captured city of Schluesselburg alone, the Germans said, fleeing Reds left behind 10,000 mines, some of which even were hidden in mattresses, stoves and elsewhere in a hospital.

The Russians, asserting officially that "the impendjing rout of all the German armies can already be discerned," reported they had hurled the Germans across the river "N" after a five-day battle in which the Nazis lost 258 tanks.

Previously, Adolf Hitler's High Command had asserted that Leningrad was completely cut off from the rest of Russia. A Berlin spokesman made the amendment today, however, that the High Command referred only to the severing of land communications.

While the Russians still hold eastern and northern coastal territory on Lake Ladoga, the Germans said, they have no adequate harbors there from which to supply Leningrad. Moreover, the lake begins to freeze in October.

On the central front, the Berlin radio broadcast a report from "competent quarters" that German troops had captured the key town of Vyazma, only 130 miles west of Moscow.

German front-line dispatches, admitting that Leningrad's defenders were putting up a terrific battle, said the Russians were "firing from all barrels." A Nazi reporter who flew over the lines described the area as an inferno of rifle, machine-gun and artillery fire.

A bulletin from the fuehrer's headquarters merely noted "steady successes in attack," while a Soviet communique reported that Red Army troops in bitter all-night fight "continued to engage the enemy on the entire front."

Both Moscow and Berlin reported heavy rainstorms drenching the northern front, but said the 81-day-old conflict had not yet bogged down into the phase of trench warfare.

Midway between Smolensk and Gomel, the Russians reported that Red Army troops had routed the 129th German Infantry division in a smashing assault in the Gomel sector, inflicting thousands of casualties.

The Soviet counter-offensive in this sector, as well as around Smolensk, was said to be continuing full-blast.

FATHER OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY LEADER DIES

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Joseph M. Duff, father of James M. Duff, Allegheny county leader for the state Republican organization, died today at the age of 87.

Dr. Duff had been in ailing health. The younger Duff spent last evening at his father's bedside in Newlinsburg, Westmoreland county. A short time after returning to his home in Carnegie, word came of his father's death.

Dr. Duff, a retired Presbyterian minister, had been pastor of the Carnegie Presbyterian church more than 40 years.

Man Listed As Dead Demands the Ballot

Sunbury, Sept. 10.—(AP)—George Kerstetter, 76, listed as "dead" on registration rolls in his home district, appeared very much alive at a polling place here yesterday and demanded the right to vote.

Election officials refused his request on the grounds he had failed to file a notice of change of address with them. An investigation disclosed Kerstetter had been listed as "dead" on information recorded by registrars in the district to which he recently moved.

PRESIDENT IS STILL WORKING ON HIS SPEECH

Informed Sources in Washington Predict Demand Will Be Made that Germany Give Strict Accounting for Taking American Lives

SPECULATION IS HIGH

BY LLOYD LEHBRAS

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—President Roosevelt, informed sources said today, will demand in his speech tomorrow night that Germany give a strict accounting for the American lives and the American shipping lost at sea because of Nazi operations.

Since the start of the war in 1939, these sources said, five American-owned ships have been sunk, presumably by German action, and at least 65 United States citizens have met death in the sinking of American and other vessels.

The president—with the recent attacks on a U. S. destroyer and two American-owned freighters providing new material—is still working on his address, it was learned, and no authoritative information was available concerning precisely what specific action he might announce to enforce respect for the rights this country claims on the high seas.

Informed sources, however, entertained little doubt that the president would make clear to Germany and the world in unmistakable language that the United States held uncompromisingly to its historic doctrine of freedom of the seas.

There was much conjecture as to what specific course would be announced to implement such a reassertion of American policy. Some thought Mr. Roosevelt might ask congress to repeal the neutrality act. Others believed that the president, as commander-in-chief, would give the navy orders to open fire on any warplanes or warships attempting to harass American trade and communication with non-belligerent countries.

Since attacks on American shipping to date have all occurred in waters not banned by the neutrality act, there is some feeling reported in administration circles that American vessels would be in little more danger in belligerent areas.

GAS PRICE HIKE IS SUGGESTED

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—Chairman Maloney (D.-Conn.) of the special Senate committee investigating the eastern gasoline and petroleum situation suggested today that a price increase of less than one cent a gallon would remedy all threats of shortage.

Senator Maloney said such an increase would cover the additional cost of moving a large supply of petroleum overland by railroad tank cars to more than offset shortages resulting from diversion of American tanker ships to British service.

A few hours earlier the supply priorities and allocations board had spiked a plan for immediate construction of an $80,000,000 pipe line from Texas to the east coast—a project advocated by Secretary of the Interior Ickes and agreed to

Wendell Willkie and Senator Gerald Nye (Rep., N. Sessa Both Torpedoed And Shelled by U-Boat

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—The State Department disclosed today that the American owned freighter Sessa was both torpedoed and shelled by a submarine presumed to be German, without warning, while enroute from Iceland to the United States.

The Sessa, according to statements by three survivors picked up by the American destroyer Lansdale, sank two minutes after being torpedoed.

The latest news of the Sessa came as President Roosevelt worked on a speech which informed persons said would demand that Germany give a strict accounting for the American lives and shipping lost at sea because of Nazi operations.

The Sessa's survivors, the state department said, are not now on the Lansdale, and it is assumed they have been landed in Iceland.

BOTH WETS AND DRYS YIELD UP SOME TERRITORY

Harrisburg, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Both "wets" and "drys" yielded up some territory to the other in Tuesday's option voting in 96 communities and incomplete returns showed the status changed in about one of every seven places which held the referenda.

In the first 48 communities to report, five dry municipalities voted in favor of beer or liquor, while nine communities cast votes to discontinue the sale of either beverage.

The voting was mostly in rural sections. Major towns to make a change in drinking laws were West Pittston, Luzerne county, which threw off its ban on liquor, and Waynesburg, which voted to close up the taprooms in that Greene county seat.

Altogether 55 communities classed was "wet" and 41 "dry" ones conducted the referenda along with the primary vote, and the additional interest spurred balloting in most of those localities.

The number of communities voting in local option was less than one-fifth that of the 1939 elections, last time the referenda were scheduled.

The results were:

Dry Now

Adams — Biglerville, against beer; York Springs, against liquor.

Beaver — Daugherty township, for both.

Bedford — Snake Spring township, against beer.

Blair — Williamsburg, against beer.

Centre — Huston township, liquor.

LONDON ISSUES "WHITE PAPER" ON AGREEMENT

Gravely Concerned Over Charges That Materials Obtained Are Being Used In Direct Competition With American Industry

TO PREVENT MISUSE

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 10—Britain, gravely concerned over charges that materials obtained from the United States under the lease-lend act were being used in direct competition with American industry in export markets, promised today to prevent such misuse and to restrict British exports.

The British government was concerned, among other things, over what its leaders called the "propaganda value to Germany" of these charges that American industry, after sacrificing to send raw materials to Britain under the lease-lend act, was being hit in foreign markets by competition with goods made from these materials.

The agreement with the United States was announced in a white paper and was said by a reliable source to be one of a series of steps planned "to prevent Germany from using lease-lend grumbles as the thin edge of a wedge to pry Britain and the United States apart and hamper the allied war effort."

Britain, this informant said, expects such a German propaganda campaign to come to a head soon and wants to be able to meet it.

He asserted the campaign is now under way in Britain as well as in the United States; that by word

ILLICIT ROMANCE ENDS IN SUICIDE

Blairsville, Sept. 10—(AP)—Arthur Richards, 26, of Blairsville, R. D. 2, married and the father of two children, wounded a girl he had been dating and killed himself with a pistol, Coroner Edward L. Fleming of Indiana county reported today.

Dr. Fleming said Richards and Josephine Ruggeri, 19, of Burrell township, whom Richards had been "dating" for several months, argued when she learned he was married and broke off their friendship.

The coroner described the shooting as follows:

Richards drove to Miss Ruggeri's home last night and asked her to talk with him in his automobile. A half-hour later, as she was getting out of the car, he fired a shot at her face and drove off. The

President Orders Creation of Board to Investigate Facts in Controversy Between Most of America's Transportation Lines and Employes Which Threatens to Stop Operation

PERSONNEL TO BE ANNOUNCED LATER

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 10—(AP)—President Roosevelt ordered the creation today of a board to investigate the facts in the dispute between most of America's railways and their employees—a dispute which threatens to stop rail operations at a time when vital defense materials are moving over the lines.

The personnel of the five-man board will be announced later.

The 900,000 employes of 14 non-operating unions had set 6 p. m. tomorrow for a strike and the 350,000 workmen of five operating brotherhoods had voted to go out next Monday.

Also involved are members of three organizations of railway express workers.

The fact-finding board has 30 days in which to report to the president, and no strike may become effective, under the railway labor act, until another 30 days after the report has been filed.

The National Railway Mediation Board had been unable to reconcile the differences between the carriers and the men who run their lines.

The operating brotherhoods have been unyielding in a demand for a 30 per cent increase in the basic rates of pay. The non-operating unions wanted the basic hourly pay rate increased by 30 to 34 cents.

In his proclamation ordering a fact-finding board established Mr. Roosevelt said the disputes between the several groups of labor organizations and the railways "now threaten substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive the country of essential transportation service."

Ordinarily a three-man board is appointed to investigate labor con-

DIFFERENCES IN TAX LEGISLATION BEING ADJUSTED

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—With rosy prospects for a speedy agreement, a joint conference committee went to work today to adjust the differences in the House and Senate versions of the huge new defense tax bill.

Although th Senate bill called for $3,538,900,000 in new revenue —$367,500,000 more than provided for by the House, leaders in both chambers expressed optimism that the conferees would be able to agree on a compromise version by the end of the week.

If the conferees needed any added incentive for speed there was the fact that the treasury theoretically is losing an estimated $2,000,000 a day pending the effectiveness of the new excise levies provided for by the measure.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House ways and means committee, sought to help the compromise work along with a statement that he had "no particular objection" to a Senate amendment reducing personal income tax exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single persons.

That amendment, however, conceivably might produce considerable discussion for there was talk that some House conferees preferred to have the exemption of married persons reduced only to $1,500.

Of the 44 items in the bill, Senate and House are in agreement on exactly half. The 22 levies approved, however, are mostly excise, or "nuisance" taxes. They would raise only $450,000,000—or about one-eighth—of the aggregate tax bill.

Because it was a recess agreement, the House cannot act on any compromise tax measure until September 15.

Successful Candidate in Contest for the Bench in Warren-Forest District Carries Every Precinct

Complete Unofficial Vote in Republican Primary Gives County Solicitor 4,167; Leroy C. Eddy, 1,333, and E. H. Beshlin, 628

BALLOT VERY LIGHT

Carrying every precinct in Warren county and piling up a wide margin in Forest county, Allison D. Wade yesterday was nominated by Republicans as their candidate for the judgeship of the 37th judicial district. Wade, who had the endorsement of Republicans organizations in both Warren and Forest counties, far outdistanced his two opponents, LeRoy C. Eddy and Earl H. Beshlin, in both counties, although Beshlin was nominated without opposition on the Democratic ticket.

The complete unofficial vote in the Republican judgeship race, the only contest for a county office, was: Wade, 4,167; Eddy, 1,333; Beshlin, 628. In getting the Democratic nomination, Beshlin received 955 votes.

In Forest county, with one small precinct still to be heard from, Wade received 638, Eddy 172 and Beshlin 66. This gives Wade a two-county total of 4,805; Eddy, 1,505, and Beshlin, 694.

Nominated without opposition on the Republican ticket were O. E. Loper, register and recorder, who led his party with 4,743; Ed C. Lowrey, for coroner, who received 4,673, and J. H. Goldstein, for district attorney, 4,613.

On the Democratic ticket, J. R. Allen was nominated for register and recorder without opposition with 804 votes. There were no candidates on the Democratic ticket for either coroner or district attorney, although it is reported there were some write-ins, which will be determined when the official count is started on Friday.

In Warren borough, the only contests were on the Republican ticket for council in the first and fifth wards. In the first ward, William E. Rice defeated David Ball DeForest, 174 to 93. In the fifth ward, Harold S. Hampson won over R. M. Forbes, 336 to 293.

Nominated on the Republican ticket without opposition were R. W. Steber for burgess, Tracy M. Greenlund for justice of the peace, Harry C. Johnson for tax collector; W. F. Clinger, M. G. Keller and R. W. Mackay for school directors, and the following councilmen: Second ward, F. W. Waite; third, Jesse G. Smith; fourth, Glenn E. Stone; sixth, George H. Klinestiver; seventh, August Karlsson; eighth, Delbert W. Lewis; ninth, D. L. Baldensperger.

On the Democratic ticket, the only borough candidates were the following unopposed council aspirants: Fourth ward, Roy E. Moore; sixth, Leonard Zobrest; seventh, Albert Schwartz.

Both parties also named election officers yesterday. A complete list of these will be printed following the official count.

In carrying every precinct in the county, Wade accomplished a feat which has seldom, if ever, occurred before in Warren county. Besides leading Eddy by a margin of better than three to one in this county, he held better than a two-to-one lead over the combined Republican votes of his two opponents.

With only one contest for a county-wide office, yesterday's vote was very light, being only about 45 per cent of the total registration in the county.

Names of candidates named in other boroughs and townships of the county were not available at

CIVIL SIEGE IS DECREED IN OSLO

Oslo, German-Occupied Norway, Sept. 10—(AP)—A state of civil siege for Oslo and surrounding districts was decrede today by the German commisisoner for Norway, Joseph Terboven.

The step follows a similar order covering certain Norwegian coastal regions put into effect Aug. 2 to deal with disturbances to public order and security.

Today's decree, which became effective at 5 a. m., was ordered, the German authorities said, because of "criminal disturbance of labor peace" by Communist and Marxist elements in recent days.

The state of siege is effective in Oslo and the Aker police district, including the localities of Aker and Berun.

ALLEGHENY CO. INDEPENDENTS ARE VICTORIOUS

Two Major Insurgent Republican Candidates Emerge Winners Over Organization Rivals in Hot Campaign for Mayor and Sheriff

LAWRENCE SLATE WINS

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Two major insurgent Republican candidates emerged victorious over Republican organization rivals in Tuesday's primary election in Allegheny county, with late returns today giving them overwhelming leads.

On the Democratic side, the regular Allegheny organization forces led by National Committeeman David Lawrence virtually swept the field, renominating Mayor Cornelius D. Scully for a second term as Pittsburgh's chief executive. There was a growing threat, however, that the organization would lose two places on the county judicial ticket to Republicans.

The triumphant independent Republican candidates were Harmar D. Denny, Jr., for mayor and former Congressman Robert J. Corbett for Allegheny county sheriff. They defeated Attorney George D. Wick and Thomas E. Whitten, respectively, who had the backing of the county and state chairmen.

The independents were supported by the county's Young Republicans, U. S. Senator James J. Davis, and James F. Malone, Jr., the party's 1940 candidate for state treasurer who bolted from the ranks of the regulars in the keenly-fought county campaign.

Denny is a former public safety director of Pittsburgh and a great-great grandson of the city's first mayor. He campaigned as an "unbossed" candidate against the ticket backed by county Republican Chairman John S. Herron and State Chairman James F. Torrance

STATE'S LIST OF POLIO SUFFERERS BOOSTED TO 326

Harrisburg, Sept. 10—(AP)—The official list of persons stricken with infantile paralysis in Pennsylvania stood today at 326, but state officials said the number of counties affected was unchanged at 48.

Eleven new cases were reported yesterday, including three from York county, hardest hit by the outbreak which has taken 25 lives in the commonwealth so far this year. Health officers in Philadelphia recorded five new cases, bringing that city's total for the year to 54.

Schools over a good portion of the state remained closed, pending the results of a survey which state officials hoped would show the disease checked.

Dr. J. Moore Campbell, director of health conservation, said indications were that "numerically, the infantile paralysis situation in the state has leveled off."

A warning that tonsil operations are inadvisable during infantile paralysis outbreaks was sounded last night by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association. Noting five of six Cleveland children recently operated on had contracted the disease and three had died, Dr. Fishbein said in Chicago:

"'It is now well established that the infantile paralysis virus may enter exposed nerve endings in the throat and this is associated with the bulbar form of the disease.' (The bulbar form paralyzes the respiratory muscles.)

Dr. Fishbein's advice was concurred in at Philadelphia by Dr. Austin T. Smith, ear, nose and throat specialist and member of the Jefferson hospital staff who commented:

"The role of tonsillectomies has

EXCITING BATTLES REPORTED

While Independents Who Challenged Candidates Endorsed by State Committees of Both Parties Are Defeated In Tuesday Election, Regular Forces In Allegheny County Are Handed Severe Setback

PHILADELPHIA STICKS TO THE OLD GUARDS

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 10—The Republican organization in Philadelphia overwhelmed an insurgent group in Tuesday's primary voting, incomplete returns showed today, but across the state in Pittsburgh an independent gave regular Republican forces a setback.

In a day of listless balloting that brought out only about one fourth of the total registration of 4,709,168, candidates supported by the Republican and Democratic state committees took commanding leads for Supreme and Superior court nominations—the only state-wide contests.

Selection of Harmar D. Denny, Jr., as the Republican nominee for mayor of Pittsburgh was conceded before dawn by Allegheny County Republican Chairman John S. Herron.

Herron and State Republican Chairman James F. Torrance had supported Attorney George D. Wick.

Denny's success, however, was a triumph for U. S. Senator James J. Davis and the Young Republicans.

Pittsburgh's mayor Cornelius D. Scully, seeking re-election, apparently won the Democratic nomination, returns from three-fourths of the city's 419 precincts showed. With 331 reported, Scully held a lead of 12,300 votes over Register of Wills John M. Uston.

With returns almost complete in Philadelphia, the Republican organization slate for city treasurer, controller and register of wills held a two or three to one lead over the insurgent ticket backed by William J. Hamilton, Jr.

Hamilton, dismissed by Governor Arthur H. James as state secretary of revenue, had said he wanted to revitalize Philadelphia Republican forces.

Philadelphia Democratic candidates went through as slated.

In Scranton's mayoralty contests, which stood out in the upstate balloting, State Senator Edward J. Coleman won the Democratic nomination over three other candidates. Howard J. Snowden was top man in a field of five for the Republican nomination.

Independents who challenged candidates endorsed by the state Republican and Democratic committees for seats on the State Supreme and Superior Courts trailed by ever-widening gaps.

The Republican state committee had backed Justice William M. Parker for the Supreme Court and Judge Charles N. Kenworthey for the Superior Court. Their opponents were Earl V. Compton of Dauphin county, Supreme Court, and Arthur C. Dale of Centre county, Superior Court.

For the Supreme Court the Democratic state committee backed Judge W. Russell Carr of Fayette county and Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Pittsburgh for the

CHARGES MOVIES WAR PROPAGAND

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—Senator Clark (D-Mo) charged before a senate investigation committee today that a half dozen men who he said controlled the motion picture industry were bent on inflaming the American people to "clamor for war."

Clark took the stand as an Interstate Commerce sub-committee began its second day of inquiry into the alleged dissemination of war propaganda. He testified after Wendell L. Willkie, representing motion picture producers, had demanded in a letter to Chairman Clark (D-Idaho) that the committee view alleged propaganda pictures.

"Before anyone is accused and subjected to inquisitorial proceedings," Willkie asserted, "there

SIGN TORN DOWN

This morning's exceptionally strong wind and rain storm besides relieving many trees of their branches and playing havoc with electric and telephone wires, twisted the huge sign atop the Times Square gasoline station into a near total wreck. Several of the letters in the sign, which were mounted on steel, were torn away completely, but fortunately stayed on the roof, causing no damage.

WOMAN CANDIDATE IS VICTOR OVER ATHLETES

Monaca, Sept. 10—(AP)—Former middleweight boxing champion Teddy Yarosz and Leland Schachern, former Geneva college football star, lost the Democratic nomination for tax collector of this Beaver county borough to Miss Isobel Ramsey yesterday.

It was the first political race for all three. Miss Ramsey, the incumbent, was appointed upon the death of her father, Charles C. Ramsey, two years ago.

should be reasonable grounds to believe that an offense has, in fact, been committed." He contended that Senator Nye (D-ND), who labeled several pictures yesterday as propaganda vehicles, had viewed only one or two of them.

Willkie also made public a letter to Chairman Clark in which he urged that the committee prove or disprove at once an assertion by Senator Nye (D-ND) that the government had requested a moving picture producer to make propaganda films.

The public is invited to visit the new Templeton Funeral Home, 101 Prospect street, on Thursday evening and to inspect the facilities there, it was announced today by Russell W. Templeton, latest addition to Warren's list of funeral directors.

The new funeral home, located in the heart of the East Side residential district, is one of the most modern in this vicinity. Mr. Templeton has purchased all new equipment of the most modern type.

One enters the funeral home through the office of Mr. Templeton, going from there into the main funeral parlor, which is tastefully decorated with blue velvet drapes and burgundy floor coverings.

Adjoining the main parlor on one side is a funeral chapel, while on the other side is a show room. The preparation room is at the rear of the building. There is also a ladies' rest room.

Mr. Templeton announced that he will have ambulance service. There will be a lady attendant on duty at the funeral home.

Mr. Templeton was born in Warren and has lived here all his life. He attended the local schools and was graduated from Eckels College for funeral directors in Philadelphia. For the past ten years he has been affiliated with local undertakers.

With Our Boys In Virginia

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 10—(AP)—Pennsylvania's 28th Division faced another defensive problem in its war games today, following an administrative march which left the troops bivouacked overnight outside the A. P. Hill Military Reservation.

With 1,800 motor vehicles operating in shuttle formation, the division yesterday moved 55 miles to St. Stephen's church to determine its ability to execute march orders on terrain after they had been planned on paper.

The march was carried out in two columns, one composed of units of the 55th Infantry Brigade, plus special engineers and part of the 103rd Medical Regiment. The other was the 56th Infantry Brigade, 103rd Quartermasters Regiment, medical and engineer detachments and the 53rd Field Artillery Brigade.

As part of the new problem which probably will last until Thursday noon, one element of the division remained on the reservation to prepare a defensive position against invasion by the returning division personnel. Forces on the reservation consisted of the 112th Infantry Regiment, one battalion of the 109th Field Artillery, a detachment of the 103rd Engineers, provisional battalion of the 71st Anti-Aircraft Regiment from Fort Story, Va., and an anti-tank battalion of the 28th.

The element at home will be the Red force and, with 60 flags used to simulate other outfits, will have the strength of a reinforced brigade for the exercises. The Reds will be under command of Lt. Col. John Van Vliet, while Major General Edward Martin will be in charge of the Blue invaders. Contact between the units was expected during the morning, with heavy fighting due about noon. Each force was allotted two planes of the 103rd Observation Squadron.

Week Day Religious Education to Be Offered to High School Pupils Of Warren; Parents Given Letters

Plans have been completed for the start of week day religious education for pupils in the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th grades of the local schools, it was announced today by John G. Rossman, superintendent of the borough schools. This program has been arranged through the cooperation of the Warren school board with the Warren Council of Week Day Religious Education.

In connection with the start of this school, Superintendent Rossman today sent the following letter to parents of all pupils in the grades affected.

"A definite program of week day religious education has been set up by the Warren Council of Week Day Religious Education. The purpose of this program is to afford enriching study and experience in the Bible, the church and its history and literature, and such other fields as may promote the growth of fine spiritual character.

"A list of the Warren churches cooperating in this program as prepared by the Warren Council accompanies this. The seven places where classes will be held are named.

"The Board of School Directors of Warren Public Schools is offering to cooperate with pupils, parents and churches in the following plan for religious education.

"1. Pupils in grades 9, 10, 11 and 12 will be permitted to elect week day religious instruction and will be granted one-half (½) point each year or a possible total of two points for the four years.

"2. The religious instruction will be conducted in the church selected by the parents and will be entirely under the auspices of that church and the Warren Council of Week Day Religious Education.

"3. Those pupils whose application for enrollment in week day religious instruction is approved will be excused from public school classes each Wednesday forenoon at 10:40 so long as their attendance is prompt and their attainment satisfactory.

"4. Credit will be granted to all pupils who attend week day religious instruction classes on the same basis as attending the regular Wednesday public school session, if their work in religious instruction is satisfactory.

The Board of School Directors is setting up a program emphasizing the ethical aspects of citizenship. All pupils who do not elect to attend week day religious instruction in the churches will be required to take this course in citizenship in the schools each Wednesday at 10:40. Teachers of the public schools teaching staff will conduct these classes. Credit will be given, one-half (½) point each year or a total of two points in four years.

"If you desire your son or daughter in grades 9 to 12 to attend week day religious instruction, please at once and not later than Tuesday, September 16, fill in and have returned to pupils' room teacher the request form accompanying this. If no such request is received, your son or daughter will be assigned the citizenship classes meeting in the public schools."

Seven of these schools are to be held, it was stated. Each will meet on Wednesdays at 10:40 a. m. The list of schools follows:

Makes Interesting Comment on Police Rodeo in the State

There has been considerable interest throughout this section in the Pennsylvania Motor Police rodeoes, and Warren residents who motored to Greensburg, Butler or New Castle were well rewarded with the excellent show staged under the personal direction of Major Martin, of the Hershey training school.

A local woman, returned from the rodeo, has this to say of it:

"This has been, psychologically, a very successful attempt to divert the hero-worshiping tendencies of the youth of America from the lawless westerners and the gangsters of our large cities to the capable officers who enforce law and order.

"It would take a very blase youth or adult to not be thrilled at the superb horsemanship and workmanship of the police, a living example of what clean living and rigid discipline can do to American youth, an example which any boy should be most proud to emulate."

THE PRIMARY IS OVER

Tuesday's primary election, demonstrated among other things, that people generally enjoy a good contest and that the question of whether the sun shines or it rains does not have much influence in getting out the vote.

In spite of the fact that there were no contests in the party, those Democratic candidates whose names appeared on the ballot were given nice complimentary votes. Republicans who went to the polls evidenced in no uncertain terms their choice for President Judge was the young attorney Allison D. Wade, who will oppose Attorney E. H. Beshlin in the November election.

A last-minute "write-in" campaign may fill the Democratic ticket for county offices in the fall election, as well as provide some opposition for most of the Republican candidates for the more important offices in the borough.

To the successful candidates we extend our congratulations, and to both the winners and losers our commednation for waging fair and gentlemanly campaigns.

WOMEN NEEDED FOR LOCAL RED CROSS WORK

With vacations over, we must realize that the tragic needs which the American Red Cross is seeking to relieve have been growing without interruption.

Mrs. R. W. Steber calls the attention of the women of Warren county to the ever-increasing amount of work on hand; and to the fact that time is a critical element. And, despite the shorter period within which the new quota of articles must be prepared, the quota is nearly three times as large as the last one!

If we are sincere in our patriotic desire to help a stricken humanity, the realization of this opportunity for service will bring many more women of the community into the endeavor.

There is a need for the starting of new units—additional units, to meet in churches and clubs and other available workrooms. There is also need for more volunteers for service in the already-established units and at the down-town headquarters in the Metzger-Wright building.

Whether one has had experience or not, the help of every woman will be welcomed and she will find abundant opportunity for usefulness, in this cause which challenges the women of the United States.

The achievements of the past season have been impressive indeed; but they must be far surpassed in the days just ahead.

A LESSON LEARNED

According to an exchange several hundred Allegheny valley women learned the hard way within the last few weeks that it pays to buy at home.

The women, it seems, placed orders with door-to-door salesmen of an out-of-state concern for silk hosiery, paying deposits ranging from $1.50 upward. Now they have been notified by mail that the price of stockings has gone up and that they must make an additional deposit. Until they do so their money will be retained and the hosiery will not be delivered. Most of those who placed the orders have begun to believe that they will never receive the stockings or get back their deposits. Some, it is said, have placed the matter before the Better Business Bureau of Pittsburgh.

The loss the women seem about to suffer will not be in vain if they can apply the lesson they should have learned. It is:

Never buy from door-to-door salesmen unless you can't obtain the merchandise from a home merchant. And then, under all circumstances, never put up a deposit. Folks who follow these rules will never have to be sorry.

The apathy of the voters extended into the evening after the polls were closed. While the editorial department force kept on the job until early this morning there were few visitors and a relatively small number of telephone calls.

All three candidates for the judiciary were about town during the early hours of the evening, but the result was not long in doubt and interest waned early.

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 10—It's a measly shame that all of you who have to pay next year's federal tax bill were not on hand for some of the final sessions of the Senate debate on this $13 billion baby which will nick you for $4 billion more than the bill of the current year. It would have done you good to see your statesmen, your chosen senators, wrestle with the great issues involved, for no finer display of the legal mind at its all-time low has been since Nero played his fiddle.

Just get the picture: Here is the world going to hades in a tank. National debt is $49 billion and the costs of the defense effort are estimated at from $50 billion to $60 billion more. So what happens? So the Senate spends nearly two hours debating whether the tax on slot machines should be reduced from $200 to $50 a year.

History is indebted for this spectacle to a statesman named Berkeley L. Bunker, of Las Vegas, Nev., and his address and remarks to the Senate in opposition to raising the tax on slot machines are worthy of inscription in all fifth grade readers right along with Patrick Henry's immortal words to the Virginia House of Burgesses, George Washington's farewell to his troops and Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Generations of unshackled gamblers—their strong right arms swinging freely as they face the one-armed bandits unafraid; their eyes agleam with the light of patriotism as they defend their home and fireside by staking their last dime on the turn of three bells or a couple of plums; the whir of the wheels of chance and the tinkle of the jackpot luring them on to endure greater hardships for their sacred rights to go broke—these are the free men who will rise to bless the name of their savior and champion, Berkeley Bunker. For a nation which can stand fearlessly before slot machines will never wither before the stuka or blitzkrieg of Hitler and his minions.

Before quoting from Senator Bunker's magna charta on slots, it might be well to explain who the senator is. He is a most moral man, a bishop in the Mormon church, and he was appointed to the Senate by his governor to succeed the late Key Pittman. I would not want anyone to think that the gamblers in Nevada are immoral people, as may be suggested," said Senator Bunker at the close of his remarks. "Many of my friends are gamblers. One of them in particular is a former banker."

Senator Tobey of New Hampshire interposed here to ask if bankers and gamblers were of the same thing, and while the remark got a laugh from the floor and the gallery, Senator Bunker replied, "No!"

To explain why Senator Bunker thought a $200 federal tax on slot machines was too high, it is only necessary to quote from his Euclidian arguments:

"A slot machine is a mechanical device," he explained, "and can be fixed so that the customer playing the machine can get 15, 20 or even as high as 80 per cent. Slot machine gambling is legal in Nevada, and where the machines are legalized the take is fixed at 15 per cent. We in Nevada derive a revenue in the subdivisions and in the state of $152 per slot machine. No person under age is permitted to play a slot machine, and they are carefully inspected so that the customers get back the legitimate percentage, or the 15 per cent to which he is entitled. There is that protection provided. You could not win or lose a sum of any consequence on a slot machine in our state if you played all day . . ."

To continue Senator Bunker's oration:

"In the state of Nevada, the $200 rate, added to the $152 which we legally collect for a slot machine, would make a tax of $352 which would eliminate about 50 per cent of the machines and would therefore eliminate about 50 per cent of the revenue which we receive from such machines. It would not eliminate the vice. It would centralize the vice in certain localities."

Well, no one could possibly want the Senate to centralize vice in certain localities so it was on that basis that Senator Bunker's amendment was passed—yeas 40, nays 22, not voting 34. And by so voting, they kept down the taxes on one ithem, at least, and isn't that just what you elected them for?

Queen Wilhelmina Rules Netherlands in Exile

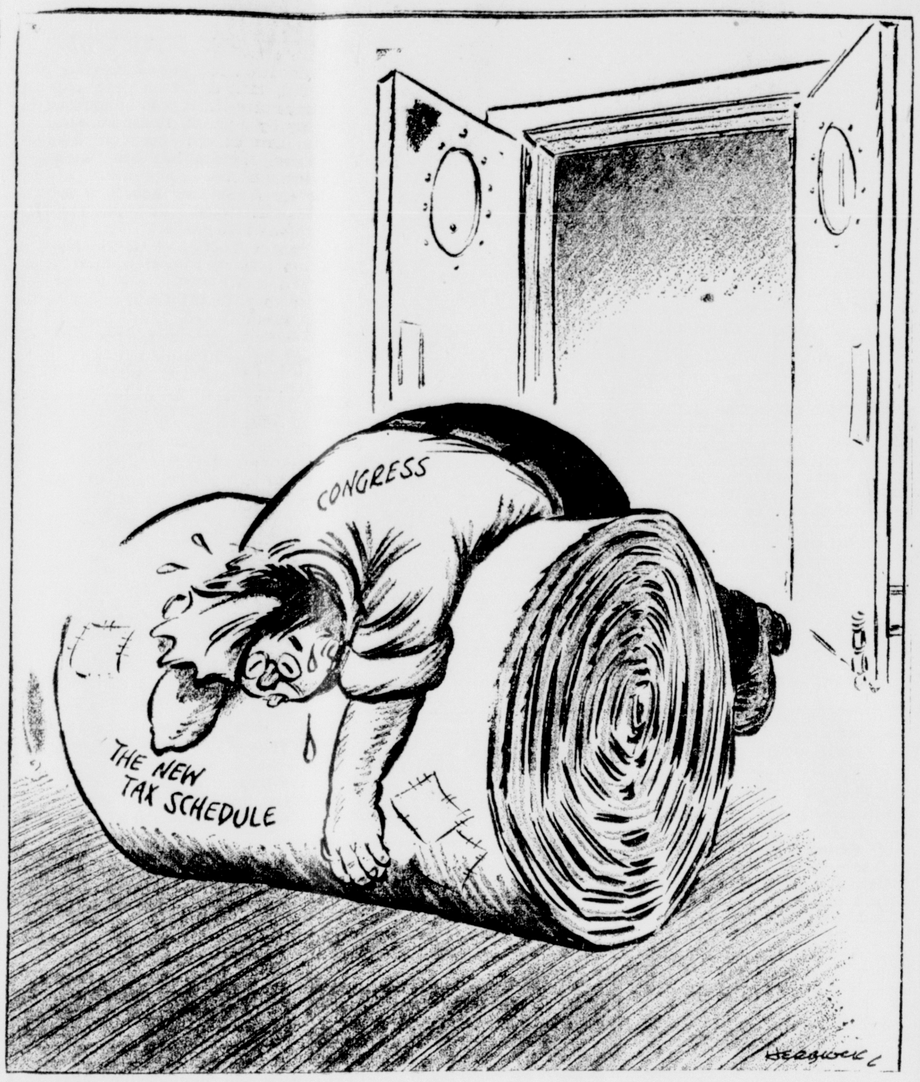

ENGLAND is the headquarters for many of the refugee crowned heads of Europe and among those present is 61-year-old Queen Wilhelmina, ruling sovereign of the Netherlands in exile.

Germany overran the Netherlands in four days last year. Although the invading troops made a desperate attempt to capture the queen, she fled to London on a British warship, May 13, with her key ministers and others of the royal family.

Unlike most refugee monarchs, Wilhelmina still has something to rule over. Although Holland is occupied, there is still a vast, incredibly rich empire six times as large as the mother country with a population of 60 million people.

YEARS AGO IN WARREN

Interesting Items Taken From the Warren Evening Times

In 1921

The Warren Street Railway company deserves credit for the excellent manner in which it handled the large crowd during the past two days of the Warren County Fair. Nine cars were operated on the Conewango avenue line and several thousand passengers were transported to and from the grounds.

Complaint is made by guests of the Carver House that they are awakened at an early hour of the morning by the hucksters who reach the Hickory street curb market at daybreak and engage in loud-mouthed altercations over their respective positions on the market. The market should have better supervision.

John T. Newell, the printer, is engaged in turning out the ballots necessary for the fall primaries. Inasmuch as women are now privileged to vote, the number required is double what it was previous to their obtaining their "rights".

The high school football squad was out to High School Park this morning to fix side lines and erect goal posts for the game with Ludlow Saturday.

President Tibbitts has called a meeting of borough council to consider the question of paving the approach to the Third avenue bridge from Conewango avenue, and Water street from Second to Third avenues.

In 1931

Never in the experience of present-day voters have they been monfronted with the task of choosing from more candidates than this year. One of the unusual features of the primary campaign is the fact that even seasoned politicians hesitate to predict the outcome.

At the present time there are fifty men employed in the construction of the new postoffice building, Liberty street and Third avenue. With the rapid progress which is now being made, the outside work should be almost completed by the time cold weather sets in.

Tomorrow the Blue and White gridiron warriors will get their first baptism of fire when they journeyed to Sheffield to meet the ever-dangerous proteges of Coach Eisenhauer.

The annual picnic and dinner of the employes and directors of the Warren Savings Bank and Trust company, was held at the Outing Club Thursday.

SEEK PLANT OKEH

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10—(AP)—The U. S. Engineers office had under consideration today the application of the Linde Air Products Company to build a water intake pumping station and to dredge a harbor along the Allegheny river at Applewood, opposite Kittanning.

The work would be preliminary to start of a $4,000,000 plant, one of 73 to be built in North America as a defense measure to extract oxygen from the air. The company is a subsidiary of the Union Carbide and Carbon Company and has a 98-acre tract at the site.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By Sigrid Arne

WASHINGTON—For months, here in Washington, there has been much talk about "dramatizing Democracy." Heads have bent over luncheon tables trying to devise methods for reminding Americans of the freedoms they enjoy. Plans have been presented, and pigeon-holed. Idea-tusslers have gathered evenings.

But, so far, nothing official has come of all the worrying.

There was always the other side of the question to consider. Government officials were afraid that any move might look like propaganda. Opponents witheringly remarked that the planners were only adopting Hitler's methods. Non-interventionists feared that any program to dramatize Democracy might lead to war fever.

Then the National League of Women Voters took the bull by the horns. It announced a campaign of its own which is the essence of simplicity. It's really just one slogan, "Win the battle of production." They're spreading that sentence far and wide—on window stickers, on billboards, on auto bumper cards, on letters, in laundry bundles.

War Talk Soft Pedaled

THE League argues: "We're not in the war. So forget that sort of talk. But we are the arsenal for the democracies, so speed up production." They don't give specific advice, like 'save gasoline," or "give aluminum." They just insist on speed.

The reaction has been quite spontaneous. Governors have paraded willingly to microphones to start off the state campaigns. Factory owners have bought the League's fliers to hand out among employees. Cities have donated billboards for the slogan, done up in red-white-and-blue paint. As an amusing climax, a large advertising concern has written to ask the women the secret of their success!

Their key flier says, "Win America's battle of production. More planes, more tanks, more guns, more goods — FASTER. More getting-together, more sacrifices, more taxes and more work—NOW, to keep free peoples FREE."

Covering The Ground

TEXAS women are putting the slogans on match folders. Missouri women are recording production speeches and sending the records out to farm communities. League members on motor trips are dumping handbills in the lobbies of summer hotels. They have invaded labor meetings, Rotary conventions, youth meetings.

In Mexico, Mo., a League wife has induced her aviator husband to trail the slogan from his plane. In dozens of cities League members are giving five-minute talks at neighborhood movies. Morning commuters are handed the printed slogan in their suburban stations. Business houses are putting it in the monthly bills.

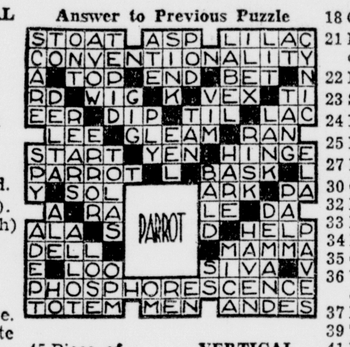

But the woman who seems to hold the laurels at this point is a New Haven, Conn., house-wife who is tied down to her home. So she campaigns by talking to tradesmen who ring her bell. She really cornered the laundry man. He must have troubles of his own, but he's carrying her pamphlets with him on his rounds.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: It was the cold nose of a wandering Kerry blue terrier that warned Pam Quellerton of the approach of Jerry Winthrope, but it was the instinct developed over years of life in Key West that warned Pam against Jerry. For there was no Quellerton money left, only a lovely old house. And Jerry was a "winter man," gay, rich, with nothing to do. And not for Pam, she thought.

Chapter Two

The Bet

JERRY WINTHROPE, on South Beach, had watched Pam go away from him with a distinct sense of dismay. He was not accustomed to being deserted by girls. He turned at length to grin ruefully at a group of tanned young men who had been sunning on a small bandstand, watching him. As they saw Pam trot away they scoffed lightly.

"That's one girl you can't mow down with your fatal charm!" The speaker was a young blonde giant who was tutoring a boy in the neighborhood.

"Oh, yeah?" from Jerry.

"Yeah!" laughed a gilded youth lazing the winter away at Casa Marina. "She doesn't give us a tumble. It's a shame, because her blonde beauty is just the foil my dark good looks need!"

"Treats us northerners as if we were germs or something!" exclaimed Edmund Antoine, who was orchestra leader at the hotel and the current rave of all the winter girls.

"Well, maybe you are!" Jerry hoisted himself gracefully to the platform. "You can't blame a girl for using a little discrimination."

"I supposed you think you're the fair-haired boy!" another scoffed. "That girl wouldn't make a date with a winter man if her life depended on it! She thinks we're dangerous, or something."

"You boys just haven't the approach," Jerry answered lightly.

"Well, we haven't a Kerry Blue, if that's what you mean. But even that"—Antoine was earnest—"won't get you anywhere with that girl. She's winter-man proof! I'll bet you."

"As I said," Jerry retorted with maddening smoothness, "you boys just haven't the approach."

"And I suppose you think you have!"

"I have. I'll take you up on that bet, Antoine. A supper party at Pena's. If you win, I give it. If I win, you give it."

"Accepted." Antoine turned to the others, laughing. "Get set for a champagne supper at Jerry's expense, boys."

"Don't be too sure."

Jerry's statement was met with good-natured jeers.

"I'll have her at the tea dance at Casa Marina tomorrow afternoon," Jerry promised, and once more was answered with friendly jeering.

Invitation

PAM always cut her roses in the morning while they were still silvered with dew. Her scissors had just cut the first bud when she heard steps behind her and was aware of Blaze beside her.

"Blaze has been waiting for you." It was Jerry's voice. Jerry whom Pam had hoped to avoid. She stroked the dog's soft coat, but was too startled to make any reply.

"And, incidentally, I have too," Jerry continued. "Don't tell me that doesn't mean anything to you. He looked at her approvingly. She was enchanting in her dark blue cotton play-suit which she had made herself.

"I'm terribly flattered that Blaze remembered me." She smiled finally. "I like dogs, and Blaze is such an aristocrat. But how do you happen to be in my garden so early in the morning?"

"I've remembered you, too, I'm in your garden waiting for you, lovely lady, because after a whole night I still remember you."

"And I'm supposed to be flattered at that?"

"You should be. It's a tribute. A tribute to your very superior charm and beauty, and all that sort of thing." He spoke lightly, but the words were faintly etched with earnestness.

"All right," she laughed. "Just to please you, I'll say thank you. And now if you don't mind, I'll cut my roses. I've got things that need doing." She would have turned away from him, but Jerry caught her hand. He was suddenly very serious.

"But I do mind, Pam," he said. "Don't send me away. I've just found you."

Pam looked out over the familiar scene. Poinsettias flaming scarlet against white walls. Mareschal-Neil roses rioting along a fence. Palms rustling in salt sea breeze. Spanish lime trees, dark waxy-green in the brilliant sun.

It was all just as it always had been, even to the pungent acrid smell of Cuban breakfast coffee in the air. Everything exactly as she had always known it. Yet Pam had a feeling it should be different.

Jerry Winthrope had spoken to her with tenderness in his voice. Jerry Winthrope had come to her garden to find her. And her heart was a-thrill. But she tried with her words to deny it.

"You'll find dozens of other girls before the winter is over!" she said.

"No, I won't. That's just it. I knew yesterday when Blaze found you. Blaze knew, too. You're not just another girl to us. You're"—he paused as if trying to find the right word—"something else. Something I'd rather tell you when there's a moon. But right now I'd like to tell you that I want to squire you to the tea dance at Casa Marina this afternoon."

"Don't be silly! You don't even know me." But under the gayety of her words her heart was pounding wildly.

"I do know you. You're Pam. And your voice is a celestial lullaby. And your moods are as soft and gentle as a summer breeze. Besides, it's such nice silliness, Pam-lovely. Now will you go?"

Pam looked at him without answering. A Persian cat moved silently along the path to a castor bean plant grown to tree proportion on the winterless island, and sharpened its claws satisfactorily. Jerry's hand at Blaze's collar stayed her instinct to give chase. Pam was finding it hard to say the thing she believed she should.

"Pam!" That tender note was in his voice again. Blaze's nose, cool and damp, touched her hand persuasively. "Will you say something after me?" She met his eyes, a question in her own. "Will you say, 'Yes, Jerry'?"

There was a moment's silence. Then:

"Yes, Jerry," she repeated.

They laughed like happy children and Blaze, catching their mood, capered about, alarming the cat, which climbed up the castor bean tree and jumped to the top rail of the white picket fence, to sit there in composed and dignified safety surveying the trio.

"Now let me cut my roses before the dew is all gone," Pam said in what she hoped was a matter-of-fact voice. "Dew is precious down here, you know, on this coral island where we have so little rain."

Leo Shore

THE water was emerald under the bright sun and the atmosphere so clear you could see to the lighthouse. A boat from Cuba that would be tying up in about an hour at the docks on the other side of the island was like a toy against the skyline. Sea beans, looking like large round horse-chestnuts, swept in with the surf, rolled madly back to the water again.

Pam picked up a perfect one that had been caught in some debris.

"They polish to the most beautiful mahogany," she said.

Jerry took it and slipped it into the pocket of his jacket.

So engrossed were they in their own pleasant companionship that they didn't even glance toward the bandstand where a few sun worshippers had already gathered. The boys stared at the couple walking along the sand so obviously in perfect accord.

"Pam with Jerry!" someone said in surprise.

"That lad is made of horseshoes," said another, watching them intently. "He gets all the breaks."

"It looks as if the supper is on me," Edmund Antoine said. "It's easy to tell when a girl has said yes."

"What a row of pikers we must be!" commented another. "I've been trying to date that girl ever since I've been here, and I've watched every last one of you trying to do the same thing. Jerry comes in and walks off his old man's yacht and does it, just as he's been doing it all his life. What's he got that I haven't?"

But Antoine wasn't listening. He was staring hard at Jerry and Pam and thinking Pam was too lovely. Too sweet and earnest and lovely . . . and Pam, in the pleasant, homey quiet of her big house, was thinking of Leo Shore and, for the first time, missing him. Leo was surgeon at the naval station. His family, like Pam's, had settled in Key West generations before, and he and Pam had been friends ever since she could remember.

If only Leo were here, Pam thought now. He had been called to Washington the week before, with several other officers from the base, relative to future developments at the Key West station. Leo, who was ten years older than Pam, had once told her he loved her. But that was not why Pam missed him. Not why she wished she could talk to him. It was because she had met Jerry, and there was something disturbing about it all. And Leo knew Jerry and Lenore and many of their kind while she, Pamela, had made a point of not knowing winter men, the idle, play-intent sons of the rich.

With Leo near, Pam knew she would feel a little better about her date for tea dancing with Jerry. Leo, out of his sincere friendship for her, would be able to guide her rightly. He was that kind. Pam was thoughtful as she dressed. Jerry and Leo. They stood side by side in her mind. So like and yet so unlike. Both charming and attractive—Jerry a handsome playboy, Leo a useful member of society.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Ed. C. Lowrey, Editor,
Times-Mirror,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Mr. Lowrey:

"Turn about is fair play," but the railroads seem to have forgotten that fact.

About eight years ago the railroads were "up against it" at the bottom of the depression. They were losing money, so they asked their employes to come to the rescue by voluntarily accepting lower wages.

The railroad workers agreed to have 10 percent deducted from their pay envelopes, to help the carriers in their hour of need. These deductions continued for several years, and a total of about $600,000,000.00 was subtracted from the wages of the rail workers. They have never asked that a single penny of this huge sum be restored to them.

Now ,instead of losing money, the railroads are reaping large and rapidly increasing profits, because of the defense "boom" and general economic recovery. Naturally, the workers who shared the carriers' poverty at the bottom of the depression believe that they should now share in the railroads' prosperity.

But what happened when the rail employes asked for reasonable wage increases? Did the railroads say one word to remind the public about their workers' voluntary sacrifice? Did they remember it themselves, and reciprocate by dealing with their workers' wage requests in a fairminded way?

No, the railroads flatly refused to raise wages by one single cent, unless they are forced to, and they launched a nation-wide propaganda campaign to prejudice the public against the rail workers' and their requests for higher pay.

That cruel and unjust propaganda, however, cannot conceal facts which are piling up about railroad profits, and which show that the carriers can well afford to share their prosperity with their employes.

Railroad profits rose from an average of $600,000,000 a year during the depression to $924,000,000 in the year ended April 30, 1941, and will go above a billion dollars in the year 1941.

Railroad wage increases are justified by other facts—such as the rising cost of living, the increasing efficiency of the rail workers, and the wage boosts which have already been granted to the workers of other industries.

The railroad employes and their families remember their bitter experiences with the cost of living in the last war period, when rail wage increases always came "too little and too late" to ward off dire hardships.

The same suffering will be experienced in this war and defense period unless the railroads grant the requested wage increases. They will be none too much and will come none too soon.

Very truly yours,
N. B. HULING.

Bridge isn't considered a strenuous game, but at a national tournament, where the players start in on Monday afternoon and play every afternoon and evening for seven straight days, you realize even bridge can be nerve-wearing and tiring.

You might assume, therefore, that champions would have to be huskies who could stand the strain. But Mrs. A. M. Sobel of New York and Mrs. R. C. Young of Philadelphia, rated as the world's two finest woman players, are perhaps the two tiniest women in tournament bridge.

For this reason, one is apt to make the mistake of relaxing when coming to the table to play against either of these girls. But make the tiniest mistake, and you will find out how quickly they pounce upon those tricks and steal them from under your nose.

In today's hand the opponents made a little slip. You can see how costly it proved when Mrs. Young played it in her championship manner.

Sitting South, she won the opening lead with the ace of spades. Two rounds of hearts were led, West discarding a spade. Mrs. Young then led the jack of clubs, which West courageously ducked, hoping East could get in to lead trumps. But after taking his king of clubs, East did not have the foresight to lead a trump, giving up his tenace. Instead, he led a spade.

Mrs. Young discarded the three of diamonds and West took the queen. West returned another spade, which dummy won, South letting go a club. A diamond to the ace put South in to lead a club to ruff.

The diamond king was led, followed by another. East played the nine of hearts but Mrs. Young over-trumped and led another club for dummy to ruff. A fourth diamond lead assured that the seven of trumps would win a trick.

Interest in the National tournament at Asbury Park was greater than ever before. All of the major events established new attendance records.

Perhaps the most thrilled and excited pair in the tournament was Mrs. Mae Rosen and Mrs. Edith Seligman of New York, winners of the women's National pair championship, but this was Mrs. Rosen's first major victory.

Mrs. Frederick Horn of New York, and Mrs. Gussie Planco of Great Neck, L. I., had led the field for the first two rounds, and played the last round against the new champions. It was this round that cost them the tournament.

In the hand shown today, Mrs. Seligman's opening bid of three diamonds was a so-called nuisance bid, but it did not deter North and South from getting into six clubs. The contract was bid and made at many of the tables, but Mrs. Seligman found the killing lead.

Although Mrs. Rosen (East) had never bid the spade suit, Mrs. Seligman could read she was long in spades. It looked as though the only chance to defeat the contract was to cash two spades in a hurry.

Townville Couple Have Anniversary

(Written for the Times-Mirror)

On Sunday, August 31, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Looker celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home near Townville. In the forenoon, the DeJean reunion met with them, with 69 present. At noon a picnic dinner was served under a large tent on the lawn.

At 2 p. m. friends and relatives from in and around Townville, Erie, Meadville, Corry, Spring Creek, Columbus, Warren, Kane, Bradford, Oil City, Sargent, Utica, Irvine, Ridgway, Tidioute, Tryonville, Pine Hollow, Rootville, and Warren and Willoughby, O., gathered on the lawn, porch and through the house to wait for the ceremony which was performed later.

On the lawn, near a climbing rose, the bride and groom stood behind two large wedding cakes banked with flowers and had their pictures taken. The second picture included the couple who attended them 50 years ago. After this, Mr. and Mrs. Looker and their attendants, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Ongley, of Rootville, took their places on the front lawn for the renewal of the marriage vows, which was performed by Rev. M. M. Clark, Leslie placing the same ring on Ella's finger that he had placed there 50 years ago.

After the ceremony, the guests watched the cutting of the wedding cakes and viewed the many lovely gifts and flowers presented Mr. and Mrs. Looker during the day. Wedding cakes were presented by the couple's four children and a niece, Miss Hazel Fosburg. The number attending was around 200.

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rain falls on the rich and poor alike and it was an impartial storm that washed out both the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday.

Neither team liked it because the downpour created two doubleheaders today—the Dodgers at Chicago and the Phillies at St. Louis—right in the threshold of the vitally-important three-game clash of the National League leaders with each other.

The weatherman could crush the Cardinals. Trailing by three games they need every chance of catching up. If anything prevents today's encounters they will be wiped off the schedule.

As the teams stand now, Brooklyn has won 88 and lost 47, compared with St. Louis' 84 and 49.

If all contests are played, and St. Louis spurts to capture 16 of its remaining 21 games for a total of 100 victories, Brooklyn still could win by taking 13 of its remaining 19. In that case the final standings would be Brooklyn 101-53; St. Louis 100-54.

If the Dodgers were rained out of two engagements, they would have to take only 11 and still could lose six to beat the Cards' 100-54 in percentage.

If the Cardinals were knocked out of two games, they would have to win 16 and lose only three to beat a Brooklyn finish of 101-53.

You can use any combination you want to, but it all proves that any games rained out of the schedule now means Brooklyn has to win less and St. Louis must win more.

Except for the contests involving the two National League leaders all other games yesterday were reeled off on schedule.

Babe Young hit his 23rd and 24th homers to earn a 4-2 victory for the ew York Giants over the Pittsburgh Pirates. His first clout tied the score in the eighth and his second came with one on in the tenth to win the game.

The Cincinnati Reds clustered six runs in the third inning to bag a free-swinging battle from the Boston Braves, 9-7, for Bucky Walters' 17th win.

In the American League Bobby Feller obtained his 23rd triumph with ninehit pitching, 13-7. The A's contributed five errors toward the Tribe's attack, which included home runs by Jeff Heath, Lou Boudreau and Jim Hegan, a rookie.

The New York Yankees squeezed to a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Browns on Tom Henrich's 28th homer in the eighth inning.

Dick Newsom pitched four-hit ball to shut out the Detroit Tigers, 6-0, for the Boston Red Sox while the Washington Senators whipped the Chicago White Sox, 7-2, last night.

WANT SECOND RAISE

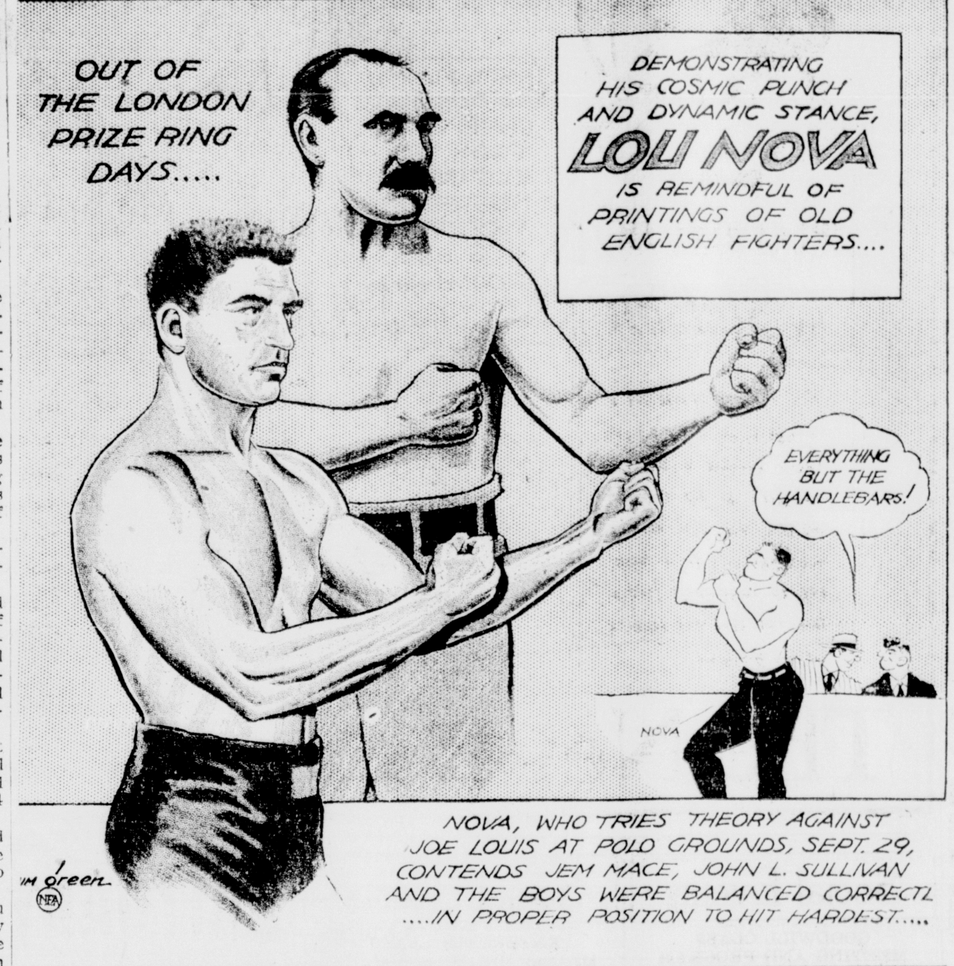

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10—(AP)—The Lawrenceville and Northside Lodges of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee recommended in a two-day convention, that S. W. O. C. contracts be reopened with a demand for an additional raise of 10 cents an hour boost in pay.

They also proposed that June 17, birthday of Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, be made a holiday in all steel mills.

ASKS CHECKUP

Harrisburg, Sept. 10—(AP)—Local Selective Service boards were asked by state headquarters today to use "all means of investigation at their disposal" before reporting cases of delinquency. Many of the cases, said Dr. William Mather Lewis, state director, are due to the carelessness of registrants in reporting changes of address, or ignorant of the law requiring them to do so.

N. B. A. SOLONS PLAN TO STOP MONOPOLIZING

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 10—(AP)—Mike Jacobs, the boxing baron of New York, recently signed a five-year contract with Sammy Angott, the lightweight champion, and thereby gave the National Boxing Association some ammunition for its announced warfare against "monopolistic control" of boxing.

The Association, holding its annual convention here, placed Angott on the suspended list yesterday and said there's where he'll stay until he fights. The organization said he failed to abide by its rule that a titlcholder must defend his crown against a top ranking foe within one year. But that in itself wasn't expected to prove much of a hindrance to Angott since he is booked to go against Lew Jenkins in New York October 31.

While the delegates omitted names in their resolution, they decided to seek evidence to break the practice of "monopolistic control which ensnares all fighters of prominence and makes them subject to a single promoter." They said they regarded the practice as an "insidious influence x x x contrary to the laws of the state of New York, in which most of these inimical acts are countenanced, encouraged and nurtured." Until the resolution was voted upon, the delegates had spent most of their time denouncing Jacobs. They asserted he had a monoply on boxing "with the aid of the New York State Athletic Commission."

The Association planned to adjourn after a brief business session today. Abe J. Greene of Paterson, N. J., was expected to be elected president. Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis and the California Athletic Commission were considered for the 1942 convention.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

DRAGONS HAVE WEAK POINTS AND CAN INCREASE POWER IMMENSELY, BUT OWN MANY ASSETS ALL TO THEIR ADVANTAGE

With two games already under their belt, the high school Dragons have shown their strength and also their weak points, and while we don't pretend to have noticed all the faults or assets that they may have shown, this column will be used today in pointing out some of the more obvious weaknesses that, if corrected, will give the Blue and White half again as much power as they now have. For instance, the ends haven't learned to perfection how to run the field on a punt, evade one or two blockers and to at least force the receiver into a tackle as quickly as possible. Also, the terminals can improve on pass receiving, and in this department we'll say they have, to some extent, judging from their two appearances thus far. As for the backs, most of them are good runners if they get into the open, but all of them can learn to pick out their openings faster and this corner believes that they will. Possibly the weakest parts of the team offensively, and yet the mightiest part on the ground defense, are the guards, tackles and center. For some reason, except through the weak side of Youngsville's line, the Dragon forward wall has been able to inflict the slightest dent. Their average yardage gained by rushing show this, and even against the Eagles the backs didn't go too far except once or twice, mainly because when they hit the line they found an immovable object one or more of them which had sifted through the inner part of the Blue and White forward wall.

But while these things are their main weaknesses, here are some assets. The Dragons play inspirational ball, heads-up at all times, and they are aggressive as a whole. Never knowing who will make up the starting lineup from game to game, they can't afford to loaf, forcing them to hustle every minute. There are around thirty-five boys who might expect a call to dress for the next game, this week and every week, upon a minute's notice, and there are also thirty-five boys entertaining the idea of wearing that coveted "W" award on their sweater at the close of the season. Without a letterman playing on the squad, every man is rated evenly and he realizes the fact. There is no coaching on the field, other than advice sent in from Leidig via a substitute. This makes for better playing all around, and all these things add up to making a squad from green timber into as strong a team as Warren has known in scholastic grid tussles in recent years. And perhaps the greatest asset is that Warren High is noted for outstanding fighting spirit. Ahead or behind, the Dragons always play football every minute of the game, whereas many other surrounding schools are great when winning, but just can't play tiddle-dee-winks if they get behind. This, in this writer's mind, is probably the greatest point in their favor unless it is surpassed, possibly, by the fact that Warren High gridders don't coast along on press clippings such as has been the case in other schools throughout the state in other years.

Coffin corner cannonade . . . Grove City College has cancelled their football squad's training which was slated to start a week before the college year opens . . . Forty-five members of last year's outfit invited to answer the call September 10, were notified to stay at home and enjoy themselves until school opens the fourteenth, due to infantile paralysis scare . . . And the Grovers first game has been cancelled because Clarion Teachers were the opponents for the September 27 date, and the teachers don't go back to their books now until September 22, also because of the polio epidemic . . . The Red Jackets must be in for a great season . . . Tickets are going so fast the entire lot is expected to be sold before Sunday's game, a nice crowd is on hand nightly to watch the boys practice on Beaty Field, and you don't have to walk far to get in deep discussion over the chances afforded the Jackets, or the sizing up of their strength, or is this player good and that one too, and the whole town is beginning to take on the atmosphere known to Bradford and Jamestown during the PONY League baseball season . . . A crowd, if the weather is nice, of 2,000 is predicted to be at Russell Field Sunday for the opener.

Predicting Record Throng For Jacket Opener Next Sunday

A crowd, larger than ever to watch the opener of Warren's previous editions of Red Jacket teams, is expected to be on hand Sunday afternoon for the opening kickoff at 2:30 when the local champions of western Pennsylvania battle last year's Pittsburgh district champions, the strong Garfield Eagles, greatest semi-pro negro aggregation in the state this season.

For many reasons the throng is expected to be increased. First, because of the fact that with more people many on defense orders, there is this year more money in circulation and more sports fans are sharing it. Secondly, other years the booster attraction with which the Red Jackets always teed off, found the admission prices boosted to a point where it was a bit costly for many average fans. Other reasons are that the Garfield Eagles gained a reputation around the Smokey City last year of being the most feared eleven in the area, and the best reason is that this community is a great football town.

With season tickets being sold at a remarkable pace, many followers are interested enough in the team that they're coming to drills at Beaty Feild, the town has gone football berserk with as much enthusiasm over the chances and the fortunes of the Jackets as Flatbush and Bronx fans express for the beloved Bums and Bombers, respectively.

Garfield brings an experienced squad made up of some of the outstanding Negro football stars from college gridirons, and the Jackets will match them with heroes of the collegiate sport in their lineup also.

The Eagles will carry a heavy team, but the locals may outweigh them to some extent. However, the visitors boast a reputation of having the fastest backfield and ends in and around Pittsburgh on the sandlots today.

The game will be played under popular admission prices, the same as last year, and shapes up to be the finest lid-lifter booked for locals in recent seasons. Star lineups will be announced late the week.

MEET TONIGHT

City League bowlers will meet this evening at the Arcade Alleys to organize their league for the coming campaign. The meeting is slated for eight o'clock and all interested bowlers planning to attend are asked to be prompt.

Sports Round-up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

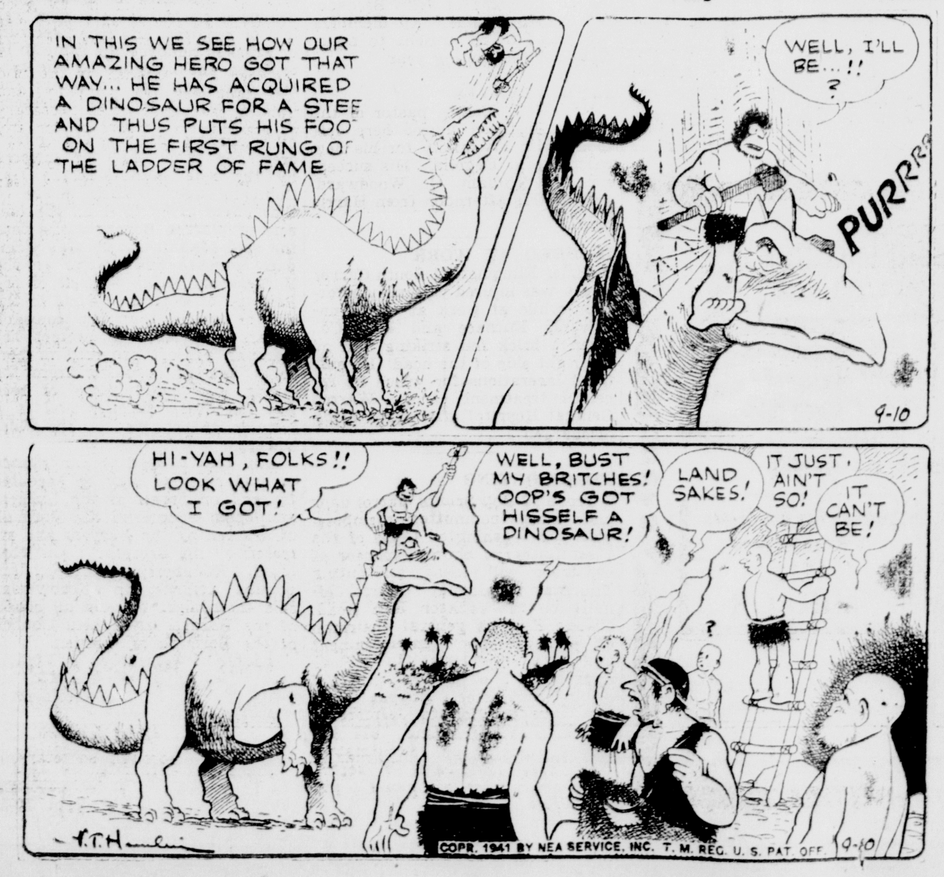

New York, Sept. 10.—(The Special News Service)—The girls are making their own news in the women's golf at Brookline . . . . Besides playing in the tournament, Dorothy Kirby (Atlanta Constitution) and Betty Hicks Newell (Long Beach Press-Telegram) are reporting it for their papers . . . Minnesota already has sent out an SOS for more tickets for the Washington game September 27 at Seattle. The first allotment of 2,000 is about gone . . . The Indians, who played the Tigers on Tommy Bridges Day, all contributed their dimes to help buy a gift for Tom . . . Nothing like being obliging . . . . The Thorncliffe race track in Canada has special mutuel windows to collect and pay off in U. S. dough . . . Even Bill Terry isn't arguing about the Dodgers being in the league this year since Brooklyn's games at the Polo Grounds drew 313,147 customers and the Giants cut in on 220,646 admissions at Ebbets Field . . . Guys who knew Lou Nova in college weren't surprised at his goofy demonstrations of his "cosmic punch." One of them recalls how Lou used to go around with his arm in a sling to rest it so he could throw the javelin better on Saturday.

To Probe Railroad Dispute

troversies involving the railways. But the current strike situation is so broad and important that the chief executive decided that five men should be named. They are to be persons "not pecuniarily or otherwise interested" in any of the unions or carriers, and they will be paid $75 each a day, plus expenses.

Attached to the proclamation was a nine-page list of the carriers involved in the dispute.

In a vigorous, full-time resumption of the multiple duties of his office, the president tried today to forget the personal tragedy of the death of his mother.

Matters of both domestic and international significance once again command Mr. Roosevelt's attention. They had been shoved into the background from the time his mother, Sara Delano Roosevelt, died Sunday at her home beside the Hudson until she was buried late yesterday in the family plot behind St. James Episcopal church.

Mr. Roosevelt ordered his special train made up today for a return trip to Washington, where he could come to grips once more with with major problems in the field of foreign affairs.

Postponed from Monday to tomorrow night by his mother's death was a radio speech tagged in advance as of "major importance".

There was reason to believe that the chief executive would analyze the entire world situation, perhaps with special emphasis on the battle of the Atlantic.

Allegheny Co. Independents Are Victorious

Labor Union leader, easily won the Democratic sheriff nomination over Charles L. Bergstedt of Versailles.

Common Pleas Judge Michael A. Musmanno led the county Democratic ticket with a tremenduous majority over his opponent for Superior Court bench nomination, Paul W. Mahady.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Judge Thomas M. Marshall were the two Republican judicial candidates holding tenaciously to seventh and eight places in the Democratic primary. Allegheny will elect eight county judges in November.

Park, who enjoyed the backing of both the Republican organization and insurgents, led the ticket of Republican judicial nominees.

On the other hand, Attorney Arthur L. McLaughlin, Jr., favorite of CIO unions who was rejected by the Democratic slatemakers, appeared likely to win one of the eight Republican judgeship nominations.

Robert Garland, "father of daylight saving time," campaigning for the Pittsburgh city council seat he held from 1911 to 1939, led the Republican council ticket.

Fayette gave its common pleas Judge W. Russell Carr a landslide vote over Judge Samuel E. Shull of Stroudsburg for the Democratic Supreme Court nomination.

The charge is heard here, the source said, that the United States is trying to use the lease-lend program to bar Britain from exporting anything so that the United States can steal all British foreign markets, thus throwing British labor out of jobs after the war.

On the other hand in the United States, it was said, charges are made that Britain was accepting lease-lend goods and then sending British goods to South America to steal United States trade.

FIRE AT CONNELLSVILLE

Exciting Battles Reported

Superior Court. Challenging the endorsement were Judge Samuel E. Shull of Monroe county, for Supreme Court, and Paul W. Mahady of Westmoreland county for Superior Court.

For Supreme Court 6434 of 8139 precincts in Pennsylvania gave: Carr (D) 242462; Shull (D) 154,455.

6498 precincts, Parker (R) 420,770; Compton (R) 249809.

Included are all of 1318 Philadelphia precincts.

For Superior Court 6402 of 8139 precincts in Pennsylvania gave: Musmanno (D) 310383; Mahady (R) 90166.

6498 precincts Dale (R) 201,498; Kenworthey (R) 443436.

Included are all of 1318 Philadelphia precincts.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia followed the general state trend in support for the committee-backed candidates for the two appellate court posts, but Democrats in both cities turned in a stronger vote than did the Republicans.

Extra interest in the voting was provided in 96 communities which held local option referenda, and the general trend of results in those fights was a change in status in one out of every seven municipalities voting.

In the first 46 communities reporting there were nine which changed from "wet" to dry and five towns or townships voted to permit retail sale of either liquor or beer, or both.

In the 22 third class cities which elected mayors, incumbents had the edge in winning nominations, but at least two—James Gold of Monessen, and Kenneth J. English of Pittston—were defeated for Republican honors. In Uniontown, where the office was declared vacant after Mayor William J. Crowe entered the military service, John W. White won the Republican nomination and Russell E. Umbel the Democratic.

Sitting judges also had it comparatively easy for at least one nomination. Opposition in the general election was lined up in the Erie, Luzerne and Columbia-Montour, however, as opposing organizations were able to split the nominations with incumbents. Judge J. Orin Waite, Erie county orphans court, gained the Republican nomination, but was defeated for the Democratic place on the November ballot by William Carney.

Judge Andrew Hourigan, former law partner of Governor James won the Republican nomination in Luzerne county for the orphans court post to which the executive appointed him, but the Democratic organization nominated its own candidate, John Hilary Bonin of Hazleton, a former Republican. President Judge Benjamin R. Jones of Luzerne faces November opposition from Democrat J. Harold Flannery, a representative in congress.

Veteran Judge Alfred E. Swoyer of Wayne county was defeated for both nominations by Clarence E. Bodie in the principal upset in the judgeship races.

In Philadelphia, where a surprise sticker campaign was started yesterday to nominate Victor E. Moore as a Democratic candidate for mayor, election officials were instructed not to tally the votes.

The city is now acting under an acting mayor because of the death of the late Mayor Robert E. Lamberton. A question of whether a mayor will be elected at the November election is pending in the courts. Bernard Samuel, a Republican, is acting mayor.

In Dauphin county the Republic victory for candidates backed by M. Harvey Taylor, former G. O. P. state chairman, over those favored in a poll of the County Bar Association. The nominees were President Judge William M. Hargest, who as a sitting judge was not considered in the poll; Rep. Robert E. Woodside, youthful Republican floor leader in the state house, and J. Paul Rupp. The Democratic nominees were J. Dress Pannell, former orphans court judge; J. Douglas M. Royal, and former State Senator George Kunek.

The Dauphin contests were regarded as important because that court has jurisdiction in commonwealth cases, testing new legislation and in suits against the state, for which the jurists receive additional pay.

New York, Sept. 10—(AP)—Stocks settled into a slightly lower range today after a brief try at recovery in early proceedings.

Rubbers and store stocks were among the resistant spots near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of about 550,000 shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Sept. 10—(AP)—Wheat prices tumbled almost three cents a bushel in early dealings today with other grains off one to three cents.

Soybeans broke as much as 5⅝ cents.

Heavy selling of wheat was attributed chiefly to the Morgenthau statement urging release of surplus farm commodities now being held off the market and increased imports of Canadian wheat as two items in a program to halt inflationary price advances.

Opening ⅞-2¼ lower, Sept. 1.18¾-1.18, Dec. 1.23¼-1.22, wheat later rallied. Corn started ½-¾ lower, Dec. 84½-84, May 88½-¾.

DRAFT BOARDS TO CLAMP DOWN ON MARRIAGES

The mere fact that a young man is married no longer is sufficient cause for his being excused from military service under the Selective Service act, it was announced today by members of Warren county's two draft boards following a meeting held earlier in the week.

In the past, it was pointed out, the two local boards have been very lenient in regard to marriages and in practically all cases, the time of the marriage was not considered in granting 3-A classifications to men within the draft ages.

According to regulations received by the local boards about July 1st, as well as information received more recently from Selective Service headquarters, actual dependency must now be shown by all draft registrants in order to be given the deferred classification.

Where the draft boards are satisfied that a marriage has been consumated for the principal purpose of avoiding military service, the individual will not be classified in 3-A but will be placed in 1-A and made subject to immediate call.

Because of the more stringent regulations, members of the two local draft boards are reviewing all cases where draft age men have been married since about May 1st. Where it is found that the marriages were to escape the draft, the men will be called to service.

Deferments will not be granted unless the boards are absolutely satisfied that the marriages were the result of plans made some time previously. The burden of proof, it was stated, will be on the draft registrants.

Borough is Visited By Terrific Storm During Early Hours

One of the hardest storms in months visited the borough between four and five o'clock, which was accompanied by terrific wind and almost incessant lightning and thunder.

In most homes in the borough lights flashed and citizens were busy closing and fastening windows.

Many shade trees in the borough were damaged, and some blown completely over, while a number of signs were reported to have been damaged.

There was little or no interruption to communications and power lines.

Football Fricassel

Paul Brown, the Ohio State coach, says he learned a valuable lesson while visiting Tom Henrich in the Yankees' dressing room this summer Joe DiMaggio had dropped an easy fly and Brown was waiting for Joe McCarthy to say something, but there wasn't a word . . . Finally Paul asked when the roof-raising would start and one of the Yanks explained: "He never says anything about a physical error, but if any of us had been caught out of position we'd have heard plenty" . . . . Carolina football fans say you can look for something to pop when Tennessee plays Furman a week from Saturday and some will even bet you Furman will knock off the Vols . . . Dave Queen, U. of California center, majors in criminology . . . He ought to be good on penalties . . . Leonard Staggs, the Nashville kid who had the college scouts so excited, is going to Copiah-Lincoln Junior College for a year or so before heading for the big time . . .The gridiron situation is getting so serious in the southwest that Frank Kimbrough has sold his 13 bird dogs so he can pay more attention to his coaching job at Baylor . . . And Texas coaches are agin' the pre-season all-star high school games because they make things too easy for outside talent hunters . . . "At least," moaned one, "we ought to make these outsiders tour Texas hunting the kids."

Today's Guest Star

Deak Morse, St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Caledonian-Record: "Larry McPhail missed the boat when he claimed there was no way to get around Ebberts Field's small seating capacity. If he and Leo the Lip would open their mouths to the greatest extent, bleachers could be erected within them to take care of another 50,000."

Brother Joe

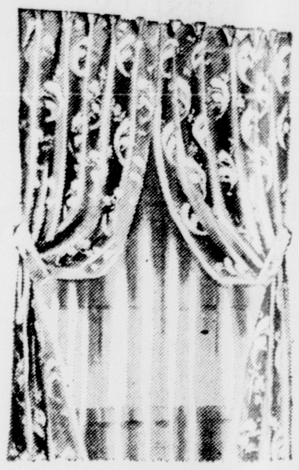

When Joe DiMaggio recently paid a visit to Father Connor of St. John's church in Fairview, N. J., a wide-eyed kid was brought in for a look at the great DiMaggio. Trying to put the boy at ease, Father Connor asked him, "Who's the greatest baseball player in the world today?" the kid hesitated a while, then blurted out, "I'll tell you. The great player in the world is Joe's brother—Dominic."

NAZIS SAY STRUGGLE BEFORE LENINGRAD IS GROWING IN VIOLENCE

Authorized Spokesmen Conceded Old Czarist Capital Still Has Outlet Through the German-Finnish Siege Ring, Across Lake Ladoga, But Insist That 1,000,000 Troops Are Entrapped

NORTHERN FRONT IS DRENCHED BY STORMS

By the Associated Press

High German quarters, reversing earlier assertions that Leningrad and its 1,000,000 Red Army defenders were doomed to quick surrender, indicated today that Adolf Hitler's invasion forces now might decide to shell or starve the old Czarist capital into submission.

Conceding that the Russians were making a bitter stand, with the bloody struggle increasing in violence hour by hour, Nazi quarters hinted that the German siege armies may not even attempt to storm the city.

With Nazi troops reported within 15 miles of Leningrad at the nearest point, authorized German spokesmen acknowledged, too, that the city still had an outlet through the German-Finnish siege ring — across Lake Ladoga to the east.

German military commentators, declaring there would be no unnecessary sacrifice of Nazi troops to gain a swift triumph at Leningrad, complained bitterly that the Russians in retreat were leaving their trail sown with land mines. In the captured city of Schluesselburg alone, the Germans said, fleeing Reds left behind 10,000 mines, some of which even were hidden in mattresses, stoves and elsewhere in a hospital.

The Russians, asserting officially that "the impendjing rout of all the German armies can already be discerned," reported they had hurled the Germans across the river "N" after a five-day battle in which the Nazis lost 258 tanks.

Previously, Adolf Hitler's High Command had asserted that Leningrad was completely cut off from the rest of Russia. A Berlin spokesman made the amendment today, however, that the High Command referred only to the severing of land communications.

While the Russians still hold eastern and northern coastal territory on Lake Ladoga, the Germans said, they have no adequate harbors there from which to supply Leningrad. Moreover, the lake begins to freeze in October.

On the central front, the Berlin radio broadcast a report from "competent quarters" that German troops had captured the key town of Vyazma, only 130 miles west of Moscow.

German front-line dispatches, admitting that Leningrad's defenders were putting up a terrific battle, said the Russians were "firing from all barrels." A Nazi reporter who flew over the lines described the area as an inferno of rifle, machine-gun and artillery fire.

A bulletin from the fuehrer's headquarters merely noted "steady successes in attack," while a Soviet communique reported that Red Army troops in bitter all-night fight "continued to engage the enemy on the entire front."

Both Moscow and Berlin reported heavy rainstorms drenching the northern front, but said the 81-day-old conflict had not yet bogged down into the phase of trench warfare.

Midway between Smolensk and Kiev, the Russians reported that Red Army troops had routed the 29th German Infantry division in a smashing assault in the Gomel sector, inflicting thousands of casualties.

The Soviet counter-offensive in this sector, as well as around Smolensk, was said to be continuing full-blast.

FATHER OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY LEADER DIES

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Joseph M. Duff, father of James M. Duff, Allegheny county leader for the state Republican organization, died today at the age of 87.

Dr. Duff had been in ailing health. The younger Duff spent last evening at his father's bedside in Newlinsburg, Westmoreland county. A short time after returning to his home in Carnegie, word came of his father's death.

Dr. Duff, a retired Presbyterian minister, had been pastor of the Carnegie Presbyterian church more than 40 years.

Man Listed As Dead Demands the Ballot

Sunbury, Sept. 10.—(AP)—George Kerstetter, 76, listed as "dead" on registration rolls in his home district, appeared very much alive at a polling place here yesterday and demanded the right to vote.

Election officials refused his request on the grounds he had failed to file a notice of change of address with them. An investigation disclosed Kerstetter had been listed as "dead" on information recorded by registrars in the district to which he recently moved.

PRESIDENT IS STILL WORKING ON HIS SPEECH

Informed Sources in Washington Predict Demand Will Be Made that Germany Give Strict Accounting for Taking American Lives

SPECULATION IS HIGH

BY LLOYD LEHBRAS

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—President Roosevelt, informed sources said today, will demand in his speech tomorrow night that Germany give a strict accounting for the American lives and the American shipping lost at sea because of Nazi operations.

Since the start of the war in 1939, these sources said, five American-owned ships have been sunk, presumably by German action, and at least 65 United States citizens have met death in the sinking of American and other vessels.

The president—with the recent attacks on a U. S. destroyer and two American-owned freighters providing new material—is still working on his address, it was learned, and no authoritative information was available concerning precisely what specific action he might announce to enforce respect for the rights this country claims on the high seas.

Informed sources, however, entertained little doubt that the president would make clear to Germany and the world in unmistakable language that the United States held uncompromisingly to its historic doctrine of freedom of the seas.

There was much conjecture as to what specific course would be announced to implement such a reassertion of American policy. Some thought Mr. Roosevelt might ask congress to repeal the neutrality act. Others believed that the president, as commander-in-chief, would give the navy orders to open fire on any warplanes or warships attempting to harass American trade and communication with non-belligerent countries.

Since attacks on American shipping to date have all occurred in waters not banned by the neutrality act, there is some feeling reported in administration circles that American vessels would be in little more danger in belligerent areas.

GAS PRICE HIKE IS SUGGESTED

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—Chairman Maloney (D.-Conn.) of the special Senate committee investigating the eastern gasoline and petroleum situation suggested today that a price increase of less than one cent a gallon would remedy all threats of shortage.

Senator Maloney said such an increase would cover the additional cost of moving a large supply of petroleum overland by railroad tank cars to more than offset shortages resulting from diversion of American tanker ships to British service.

A few hours earlier the supply priorities and allocations board had spiked a plan for immediate construction of an $80,000,000 pipe line from Texas to the east coast—a project advocated by Secretary of the Interior Ickes and agreed to

Sessa Both Torpedoed And Shelled by U-Boat

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—The State Department disclosed today that the American owned freighter Sessa was both torpedoed and shelled by a submarine presumed to be German, without warning, while enroute from Iceland to the United States.

The Sessa, according to statements by three survivors picked up by the American destroyer Lansdale, sank two minutes after being torpedoed.

The latest news of the Sessa came as President Roosevelt worked on a speech which informed persons said would demand that Germany give a strict accounting for the American lives and shipping lost at sea because of Nazi operations.

The Sessa's survivors, the state department said, are not now on the Lansdale, and it is assumed they have been landed in Iceland.

BOTH WETS AND DRYS YIELD UP SOME TERRITORY

Harrisburg, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Both "wets" and "drys" yielded up some territory to the other in Tuesday's option voting in 96 communities and incomplete returns showed the status changed in about one of every seven places which held the referenda.

In the first 48 communities to report, five dry municipalities voted in favor of beer or liquor, while nine communities cast votes to discontinue the sale of either beverage.

The voting was mostly in rural sections. Major towns to make a change in drinking laws were West Pittston, Luzerne county, which threw off its ban on liquor, and Waynesburg, which voted to close up the taprooms in that Greene county seat.

Altogether 55 communities classed was "wet" and 41 "dry" ones conducted the referenda along with the primary vote, and the additional interest spurred balloting in most of those localities.

The number of communities voting in local option was less than one-fifth that of the 1939 elections, last time the referenda were scheduled.

The results were:

Dry Now

Adams — Biglerville, against beer; York Springs, against liquor.

Beaver — Daugherty township, for both.

Bedford — Snake Spring township, against beer.

Blair — Williamsburg, against beer.

Centre — Huston township, liquor.

LONDON ISSUES "WHITE PAPER" ON AGREEMENT

Gravely Concerned Over Charges That Materials Obtained Are Being Used In Direct Competition With American Industry

TO PREVENT MISUSE

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 10—Britain, gravely concerned over charges that materials obtained from the United States under the lease-lend act were being used in direct competition with American industry in export markets, promised today to prevent such misuse and to restrict British exports.

The British government was concerned, among other things, over what its leaders called the "propaganda value to Germany" of tnese charges that American industry, after sacrificing to send raw materials to Britain under the lease-lend act, was being hit in foreign markets by competition with goods made from these materials.

The agreement with the United States was announced in a white paper and was said by a reliable source to be one of a series of steps planned "to prevent Germany from using lease-lend grumbles as the thin edge of a wedge to pry Britain and the United States apart and hamper the allied war effort."

Britain, this informant said, expects such a German propaganda campaign to come to a head soon and wants to be able to meet it.

He asserted the campaign is now under way in Britain as well as in the United States; that by word

ILLICIT ROMANCE ENDS IN SUICIDE

Blairsville, Sept. 10—(AP)—Arthur Richards, 26, of Blairsville, R. D. 2, married and the father of two children, wounded a girl he had been dating and killed himself with a pistol, Coroner Edward L. Fleming of Indiana county reported today.

Dr. Fleming said Richards and Josephine Ruggeri, 19, of Burrell township, whom Richards had been "dating" for several months, argued when she learned he was married and broke off their friendship.

The coroner described the shooting as follows:

Richards drove to Miss Ruggeri's home last night and asked her to talk with him in his automobile. A half-hour later, as she was getting out of the car, he fired a shot at her face and drove off. The

President Orders Creation of Board to Investigate Facts in Controversy Between Most of America's Transportation Lines and Employes Which Threatens to Stop Operation

PERSONNEL TO BE ANNOUNCED LATER

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 10—(AP)—President Roosevelt ordered the creation today of a board to investigate the facts in the dispute between most of America's railways and their employees—a dispute which threatens to stop rail operations at a time when vital defense materials are moving over the lines.

The personnel of the five-man board will be announced later.

The 900,000 employes of 14 non-operating unions had set 6 p. m. tomorrow for a strike and the 350,000 workmen of five operating brotherhoods had voted to go out next Monday.

Also involved are members of three organizations of railway express workers.

The fact-finding board has 30 days in which to report to the president, and no strike may become effective, under the railway labor act, until another 30 days after the report has been filed.

The National Railway Mediation Board had been unable to reconcile the differences between the carriers and the men who run their lines.

The operating brotherhoods have been unyielding in a demand for a 30 per cent increase in the basic rates of pay. The non-operating unions wanted the basic hourly pay rate increased by 30 to 34 cents.

In his proclamation ordering a fact-finding board established Mr. Roosevelt said the disputes between the several groups of labor organizations and the railways "now threaten substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive the country of essential transportation service."

Ordinarily a three-man board is appointed to investigate labor con-

DIFFERENCES IN TAX LEGISLATION BEING ADJUSTED

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—With rosy prospects for a speedy agreement, a joint conference committee went to work today to adjust the differences in the House and Senate versions of the huge new defense tax bill.

Although th Senate bill called for $2,538,900,000 in new revenue —$367,500,000 more than provided for by the House, leaders in both chambers expressed optimism that the conferees would be able to agree on a compromise version by the end of the week.

If the conferees needed any added incentive for speed there was the fact that the treasury theoretically is losing an estimated $2,000,000 a day pending the effectiveness of the new excise levies provided for by the measure.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House ways and means committee, sought to help the compromise work along with a statement that he had "no particular objection" to a Senate amendment reducing personal income tax exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single persons.

That amendment, however, conceivably might produce considerable discussion for there was talk that some House conferees preferred to have the exemption of married persons reduced only to $1,500.

Of the 44 items in the bill, Senate and House are in agreement on exactly half. The 22 levies approved, however, are mostly excise, or "nuisance" taxes. They would raise only $450,000,000—or about one-eighth—of the aggregate tax bill.

Because it was a recess agreement, the House cannot act on any compromise tax measure until September 15.

Successful Candidate in Contest for the Bench in Warren-Forest District Carries Every Precinct

Complete Unofficial Vote in Republican Primary Gives County Solicitor 4,167; Leroy C. Eddy, 1,333, and E. H. Beshlin, 628

BALLOT VERY LIGHT

Carrying every precinct in Warren county and piling up a wide margin in Forest county, Allison D. Wade yesterday was nominated by Republicans as their candidate for the judgeship of the 37th judicial district. Wade, who had the endorsement of Republicans organizations in both Warren and Forest counties, far outdistanced his two opponents, LeRoy C. Eddy and Earl H. Beshlin, in both counties, although Beshlin was nominated without opposition on the Democratic ticket.

The complete unofficial vote in the Republican judgeship race, the only contest for a county office, was: Wade, 4,167; Eddy, 1,333; Beshlin, 628. In getting the Democratic nomination, Beshlin received 955 votes.

In Forest county, with one small precinct still to be heard from, Wade received 638, Eddy 172 and Beshlin 66. This gives Wade a two-county total of 4,805; Eddy, 1,505, and Beshlin, 694.

Nominated without opposition on the Republican ticket were O. E. Loper, register and recorder, who led his party with 4,743; Ed C. Lowrey, for coroner, who received 4,673, and J. H. Goldstein, for district attorney, 4,613.

On the Democratic ticket, J. R. Allen was nominated for register and recorder without opposition with 804 votes. There were no candidates on the Democratic ticket for either coroner or district attorney, although it is reported there were some write-ins, which will be determined when the official count is started on Friday.

In Warren borough, the only contests were on the Republican ticket for council in the first and fifth wards. In the first ward, William E. Rice defeated David Ball DeForest, 174 to 93. In the fifth ward, Harold S. Hampson won over R. M. Forbes, 336 to 293.

Nominated on the Republican ticket without opposition were R. W. Steber for burgess, Tracy M. Greenlund for justice of the peace, Harry C. Johnson for tax collector; W. F. Clinger, M. G. Keller and R. W. Mackay for school directors, and the following councilmen: Second ward, F. W. Waite; third, Jesse G. Smith; fourth, Glenn E. Stone; sixth, George H. Klinestiver; seventh, August Karlsson; eighth, Delbert W. Lewis; ninth, D. L. Baldensperger.

On the Democratic ticket, the only borough candidates were the following unopposed council aspirants: Fourth ward, Roy E. Moore; sixth, Leonard Zobrest; seventh, Albert Schwartz.

Both parties also named election officers yesterday. A complete list of these will be printed following the official count.

In carrying every precinct in the county, Wade accomplished a feat which has seldom, if ever, occurred before in Warren county. Besides leading Eddy by a margin of better than three to one in this county, he held better than a two-to-one lead over the combined Republican votes of his two opponents.

With only one contest for a county-wide office, yesterday's vote was very light, being only about 45 per cent of the total registration in the county.

Names of candidates named in other boroughs and townships of the county were not available at

CIVIL SIEGE IS DECREED IN OSLO

Oslo, German-Occupied Norway, Sept. 10—(AP)—A state of civil siege for Oslo and surrounding districts was decrede today by the German commisisoner for Norway, Joseph Terboven.

The step follows a similar order covering certain Norwegian coastal regions put into effect Aug. 2 to deal with disturbances to public order and security.

Today's decree, which became effective at 5 a. m., was ordered, the German authorities said, because of "criminal disturbance of labor peace" by Communist and Marxist elements in recent days.

The state of siege is effective in Oslo and the Aker police district, including the localities of Aker and Berun.

ALLEGHENY CO. INDEPENDENTS ARE VICTORIOUS

Two Major Insurgent Republican Candidates Emerge Winners Over Organization Rivals in Hot Campaign for Mayor and Sheriff

LAWRENCE SLATE WINS

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Two major insurgent Republican candidates emerged victorious over Republican organization rivals in Tuesday's primary election in Allegheny county, with late returns today giving them overwhelming leads.

On the Democratic side, the regular Allegheny organization forces led by National Committeeman David Lawrence virtually swept the field, renominating Mayor Cornelius D. Scully for a second term as Pittsburgh's chief executive. There was a growing threat, however, that the organization would lose two places on the county judicial ticket to Republicans.

The triumphant independent Republican candidates were Harmar D. Denny, Jr., for mayor and former Congressman Robert J. Corbett for Allegheny county sheriff. They defeated Attorney George D. Wick and Thomas E. Whitten, respectively, who had the backing of the county and state chairmen.

The independents were supported by the county's Young Republicans, U. S. Senator James J. Davis, and James F. Malone, Jr., the party's 1940 candidate for state treasurer who bolted from the ranks of the regulars in the keenly-fought county campaign.

Denny is a former public safety director of Pittsburgh and a great-great grandson of the city's first mayor. He campaigned as an "unbossed" candidate against the ticket backed by county Republican Chairman John S. Herron and State Chairman James F. Torrance

Harrisburg, Sept. 10—(AP)—The official list of persons stricken with infantile paralysis in Pennsylvania stood today at 326, but state officials said the number of counties affected was unchanged at 48.

Eleven new cases were reported yesterday, including three from York county, hardest hit by the outbreak which has taken 25 lives in the commonwealth so far this year. Health officers in Philadelphia recorded five new cases, bringing that city's total for the year to 54.

Schools over a good portion of the state remained closed, pending the results of a survey which state officials hoped would show the disease checked.

Dr. J. Moore Campbell, director of health conservation, said indications were that "numerically, the infantile paralysis situation in the state has leveled off."

A warning that tonsil operations are inadvisable during infantile paralysis outbreaks was sounded last night by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association. Noting five of six Cleveland children recently operated on had contracted the disease and three had died, Dr. Fishbein said in Chicago:

"'It is now well established that the infantile paralysis virus may enter exposed nerve endings in the throat and this is associated with the bulbar form of the disease.' (The bulbar form paralyzes the respiratory muscles.)

Dr. Fishbein's advice was concurred in at Philadelphia by Dr. Austin T. Smith, ear, nose and throat specialist and member of the Jefferson hospital staff who commented:

"The role of tonsillectomies has

EXCITING BATTLES REPORTED

While Independents Who Challenged Candidates Endorsed by State Committees of Both Parties Are Defeated In Tuesday Election, Regular Forces In Allegheny County Are Handed Severe Setback

PHILADELPHIA STICKS TO THE OLD GUARDS

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 10—The Republican organization in Philadelphia overwhelmed an insurgent group in Tuesday's primary voting, incomplete returns showed today, but across the state in Pittsburgh an independent gave regular Republican forces a setback.

In a day of listless balloting that brought out only about one fourth of the total registration of 4,709,168, candidates supported by the Republican and Democratic state committees took commanding leads for Supreme and Superior court nominations—the only state-wide contests.

Selection of Harmar D. Denny, Jr., as the Republican nominee for mayor of Pittsburgh was conceded before dawn by Allegheny County Republican Chairman John S. Herron.

Herron and State Republican Chairman James F. Torrance had supported Attorney George D. Wick.

Denny's success, however, was a triumph for U. S. Senator James J. Davis and the Young Republicans.

Pittsburgh's mayor Cornelius D. Scully, seeking re-election, apparently won the Democratic nomination, returns from three-fourths of the city's 419 precincts showed. With 331 reported, Scully held a lead of 12,300 votes over Register of Wills John M. Uston.

With returns almost complete in Philadelphia, the Republican organization slate for city treasurer, controller and register of wills held a two or three to one lead over the insurgent ticket backed by William J. Hamilton, Jr.

Hamilton, dismissed by Governor Arthur H. James as state secretary of revenue, had said he wanted to revitalize Philadelphia Republican forces.

Philadelphia Democratic candidates went through as slated.

In Scranton's mayoralty contests, which stood out in the upstate balloting, State Senator Edward J. Coleman won the Democratic nomination over three other candidates. Howard J. Snowden was top man in a field of five for the Republican nomination.

Independents who challenged candidates endorsed by the state Republican and Democratic committees for seats on the State Supreme and Superior Courts trailed by ever-widening gaps.

The Republican state committee had backed Justice William M. Parker for the Supreme Court and Judge Charles N. Kenworthey for the Superior Court. Their opponents were Earl V. Compton of Dauphin county, Supreme Court, and Arthur C. Dale of Centre county, Superior Court.

For the Supreme Court the Democratic state committee backed Judge W. Russell Carr of Fayette county and Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Pittsburgh for the

CHARGES MOVIES WAR PROPAGAND

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—Senator Clark (D-Mo) charged before a senate investigation committee today that a half dozen men who he said controlled the motion picture industry were bent on inflaming the American people to "clamor for war."

Clark took the stand as an Interstate Commerce sub-committee began its second day of inquiry into the alleged dissemination of war propaganda. He testified after Wendell L. Willkie, representing motion picture producers, had demanded in a letter to Chairman Clark (D-Idaho) that the committee view alleged propaganda pictures.

"Before anyone is accused and subjected to inquisitorial proceedings," Willkie asserted, "there

SIGN TORN DOWN

This morning's exceptionally strong wind and rain storm besides relieving many trees of their branches and playing havoc with electric and telephone wires, twisted the huge sign atop the Times Square gasoline station into a near total wreck. Several of the letters in the sign, which were mounted on steel, were torn away completely, but fortunately stayed on the roof, causing no damage.

WOMAN CANDIDATE IS VICTOR OVER ATHLETES

Monaca, Sept. 10—(AP)—Former middleweight boxing champion Teddy Yarosz and Leland Schachern, former Geneva college football star, lost the Democratic nomination for tax collector of this Beaver county borough to Miss Isobel Ramsey yesterday.

It was the first political race for all three. Miss Ramsey, the incumbent, was appointed upon the death of her father, Charles C. Ramsey, two years ago.

Schachern, grid coach at Monaca high school, scored one of the touchdowns that gave Geneva a surprise victory over Harvard in 1926.

Willkie also made public a letter to Chairman Clark in which he urged that the committee prove or disprove at once an assertion by Senator Nye (D-ND) that the government had requested a moving picture producer to make propaganda films.

INVITES PUBLIC TO VISIT NEW FUNERAL HOME

The public is invited to visit the new Templeton Funeral Home, 101 Prospect street, on Thursday evening and to inspect the facilities there, it was announced today by Russell W. Templeton, latest addition to Warren's list of funeral directors.

The new funeral home, located in the heart of the East Side residential district, is one of the most modern in this vicinity. Mr. Templeton has purchased all new equipment of the most modern type.

One enters the funeral home through the office of Mr. Templeton, going from there into the main funeral parlor, which is tastefully decorated with blue velvet drapes and burgundy floor coverings.

Adjoining the main parlor on one side is a funeral chapel, while on the other side is a show room. The preparation room is at the rear of the building. There is also a ladies' rest room.

Mr. Templeton announced that he will have ambulance service. There will be a lady attendant on duty at the funeral home.

Mr. Templeton was born in Warren and has lived here all his life. He attended the local schools and was graduated from Eckels College for funeral directors in Philadelphia. For the past ten years he has been affiliated with local undertakers.

With Our Boys In Virginia

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 10—(AP)—Pennsylvania's 28th Division faced another defensive problem in its war games today, following an administrative march which left the troops bivouacked overnight outside the A. P. Hill Military Reservation.

With 1,800 motor vehicles operating in shuttle formation, the division yesterday moved 55 miles to St. Stephen's church to determine its ability to execute march orders on terrain after they had been planned on paper.

The march was carried out in two columns, one composed of units of the 55th Infantry Brigade, plus special engineers and part of the 103rd Medical Regiment. The other was the 56th Infantry Brigade, 103rd Quartermasters Regiment, medical and engineer detachments and the 53rd Field Artillery Brigade.

As part of the new problem which probably will last until Thursday noon, one element of the division remained on the reservation to prepare a defensive position against invasion by the returning division personnel. Forces on the reservation consisted of the 112th Infantry Regiment, one battalion of the 109th Field Artillery, a detachment of the 103rd Engineers, provisional battalion of the 71st Anti-Aircraft Regiment from Fort Story, Va., and an anti-tank battalion of the 28th.

The element at home will be the Red force and, with 60 flags used to simulate other outfits, will have the strength of a reinforced brigade for the exercises. The Reds will be under command of Lt. Col. John Van Vliet, while Major General Edward Martin will be in charge of the Blue invaders. Contact between the units was expected during the morning, with heavy fighting due about noon. Each force was allotted two planes of the 103rd Observation Squadron.

Week Day Religious Education to Be Offered to High School Pupils Of Warren; Parents Given Letters

Plans have been completed for the start of week day religious education for pupils in the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th grades of the local schools, it was announced today by John G. Rossman, superintendent of the borough schools. This program has been arranged through the cooperation of the Warren school board with the Warren Council of Week Day Religious Education.

In connection with the start of this school, Superintendent Rossman today sent the following letter to parents of all pupils in the grades affected.

"A definite program of week day religious education has been set up by the Warren Council of Week Day Religious Education. The purpose of this program is to afford enriching study and experience in the Bible, the church and its history and literature, and such other fields as may promote the growth of fine spiritual character.

"A list of the Warren churches cooperating in this program as prepared by the Warren Council accompanies this. The seven places where classes will be held are named.

"The Board of School Directors of Warren Public Schools is offering to cooperate with pupils, parents and churches in the following plan for religious education.

"1. Pupils in grades 9, 10, 11 and 12 will be permitted to elect week day religious instruction and will be granted one-half (½) point each year or a possible total of two points for the four years.

"2. The religious instruction will be conducted in the church selected by the parents and will be entirely under the auspices of that church and the Warren Council of Week Day Religious Education.

"3. Those pupils whose application for enrollment in week day religious instruction is approved will be excused from public school classes each Wednesday forenoon at 10:40 so long as their attendance is prompt and their attainment satisfactory.

"4. Credit will be granted to all pupils who attend week day religious instruction classes on the same basis as attending the regular Wednesday public school session, if their work in religious instruction is satisfactory.

The Board of School Directors is setting up a program emphasizing the ethical aspects of citizenship. All pupils who do not elect to attend week day religious instruction in the churches will be required to take this course in citizenship in the schools each Wednesday at 10:40. Teachers of the public schools teaching staff will conduct these classes. Credit will be given, one-half (½) point each year or a total of two points in four years.

"If you desire your son or daughter in grades 9 to 12 to attend week day religious instruction, please at once and not later than Tuesday, September 16, fill in and have returned to pupils' room teacher the request form accompanying this. If no such request is received, your son or daughter will be assigned the citizenship classes meeting in the public schools."

Seven of these schools are to be held, it was stated. Each will meet on Wednesdays at 10:40 a. m. The list of schools follows:

Makes Interesting Comment on Police Rodeo in the State

There has been considerable interest throughout this section in the Pennsylvania Motor Police rodeoes, and Warren residents who motored to Greensburg, Butler or New Castle were well rewarded with the excellent show staged under the personal direction of Major Martin, of the Hershey training school.

A local woman, returned from the rodeo, has this to say of it:

"This has been, psychologically, a very successful attempt to divert the hero-worshiping tendencies of the youth of America from the lawless westerners and the gangsters of our large cities to the capable officers who enforce law and order.

"It would take a very blase youth or adult to not be thrilled at the superb horsemanship and workmanship of the police, a living example of what clean living and rigid discipline can do to American youth, an example which any boy should be most proud to emulate."

THE PRIMARY IS OVER

Tuesday's primary election, demonstrated among other things, that people generally enjoy a good contest and that the question of whether the sun shines or it rains does not have much influence in getting out the vote.

In spite of the fact that there were no contests in the party, those Democratic candidates whose names appeared on the ballot were given nice complimentary votes. Republicans who went to the polls evidenced in no uncertain terms their choice for President Judge was the young attorney Allison D. Wade, who will oppose Attorney E. H. Beshlin in the November election.

A last-minute "write-in" campaign may fill the Democratic ticket for county offices in the fall election, as well as provide some opposition for most of the Republican candidates for the more important offices in the borough.

To the successful candidates we extend our congratulations, and to both the winners and losers our commednation for waging fair and gentlemanly campaigns.

WOMEN NEEDED FOR LOCAL RED CROSS WORK

With vacations over, we must realize that the tragic needs which the American Red Cross is seeking to relieve have been growing without interruption.

Mrs. R. W. Steber calls the attention of the women of Warren county to the ever-increasing amount of work on hand; and to the fact that time is a critical element. And, despite the shorter period within which the new quota of articles must be prepared, the quota is nearly three times as large as the last one!

If we are sincere in our patriotic desire to help a stricken humanity, the realization of this opportunity for service will bring many more women of the community into the endeavor.

There is a need for the starting of new units—additional units, to meet in churches and clubs and other available workrooms. There is also need for more volunteers for service in the already-established units and at the down-town headquarters in the Metzger-Wright building.

Whether one has had experience or not, the help of every woman will be welcomed and she will find abundant opportunity for usefulness, in this cause which challenges the women of the United States.

The achievements of the past season have been impressive indeed; but they must be far surpassed in the days just ahead.

A LESSON LEARNED

According to an exchange several hundred Allegheny valley women learned the hard way within the last few weeks that it pays to buy at home.

The women, it seems, placed orders with door-to-door salesmen of an out-of-state concern for silk hosiery, paying deposits ranging from $1.50 upward. Now they have been notified by mail that the price of stockings has gone up and that they must make an additional deposit. Until they do so their money will be retained and the hosiery will not be delivered. Most of those who placed the orders have begun to believe that they will never receive the stockings or get back their deposits. Some, it is said, have placed the matter before the Better Business Bureau of Pittsburgh.

The loss the women seem about to suffer will not be in vain if they can apply the lesson they should have learned. It is:

Never buy from door-to-door salesmen unless you can't obtain the merchandise from a home merchant. And then, under all circumstances, never put up a deposit. Folks who follow these rules will never have to be sorry.

The apathy of the voters extended into the evening after the polls were closed. While the editorial department force kept on the job until early this morning there were few visitors and a relatively small number of telephone calls.

All three candidates for the judiciary were about town during the early hours of the evening, but the result was not long in doubt and interest waned early.

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Sept. 10—It's a measly shame that all of you who have to pay next year's federal tax bill were not on hand for some of the final sessions of the Senate debate on this $13 billion baby which will nick you for $4 billion more than the bill of the current year. It would have done you good to see your statesmen, your chosen senators, wrestle with the great issues involved, for no finer display of the legal mind at its all-time low has been since Nero played his fiddle.

Just get the picture: Here is the world going to hades in a tank. National debt is $49 billion and the costs of the defense effort are estimated at from $50 billion to $60 billion more. So what happens? So the Senate spends nearly two hours debating whether the tax on slot machines should be reduced from $200 to $50 a year.

History is indebted for this spectacle to a statesman named Berkeley L. Bunker, of Las Vegas, Nev., and his address and remarks to the Senate in opposition to raising the tax on slot machines are worthy of inscription in all fifth grade readers right along with Patrick Henry's immortal words to the Virginia House of Burgesses, George Washington's farewell to his troops and Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Generations of unshackled gamblers—their strong right arms swinging freely as they face the one-armed bandits unafraid; their eyes agleam with the light of patriotism as they defend their home and fireside by staking their last dime on the turn of three bells or a couple of plums; the whir of the wheels of chance and the tinkle of the jackpot luring them on to endure greater hardships for their sacred rights to go broke—these are the free men who will rise to bless the name of their savior and champion, Berkeley Bunker. For a nation which can stand fearlessly before slot machines will never wither before the stuka or blitzkrieg of Hitler and his minions.

Before quoting from Senator Bunker's magna charta on slots, it might be well to explain who the senator is. He is a most moral man, a bishop in the Mormon church, and he was appointed to the Senate by his governor to succeed the late Key Pittman. I would not want anyone to think that the gamblers in Nevada are immoral people, as may be suggested," said Senator Bunker at the close of his remarks. "Many of my friends are gamblers. One of them in particular is a former banker."

Senator Tobey of New Hampshire interposed here to ask if bankers and gamblers were of the same thing, and while the remark got a laugh from the floor and the gallery, Senator Bunker replied, "No!"

To explain why Senator Bunker thought a $200 federal tax on slot machines was too high, it is only necessary to quote from his Euclidian arguments:

"A slot machine is a mechanical device," he explained, "and can be fixed so that the customer playing the machine can get 15, 20 or even as high as 80 per cent. Slot machine gambling is legal in Nevada, and where the machines are legalized the take is fixed at 15 per cent. We in Nevada derive a revenue in the subdivisions and in the state of $152 per slot machine. No person under age is permitted to play a slot machine, and they are carefully inspected so that the customers get back the legitimate percentage, or the 15 per cent to which he is entitled. There is that protection provided. You could not win or lose a sum of any consequence on a slot machine in our state if you played all day . . ."

To continue Senator Bunker's oration:

"In the state of Nevada, the $200 rate, added to the $152 which we legally collect for a slot machine, would make a tax of $352 which would eliminate about 50 per cent of the machines and would therefore eliminate about 50 per cent of the revenue which we receive from such machines. It would not eliminate the vice. It would centralize the vice in certain localities."

Well, no one could possibly want the Senate to centralize vice in certain localities so it was on that basis that Senator Bunker's amendment was passed—yeas 40, nays 22, not voting 34. And by so voting, they kept down the taxes on one ithem, at least, and isn't that just what you elected them for?

Queen Wilhelmina Rules Netherlands in Exile

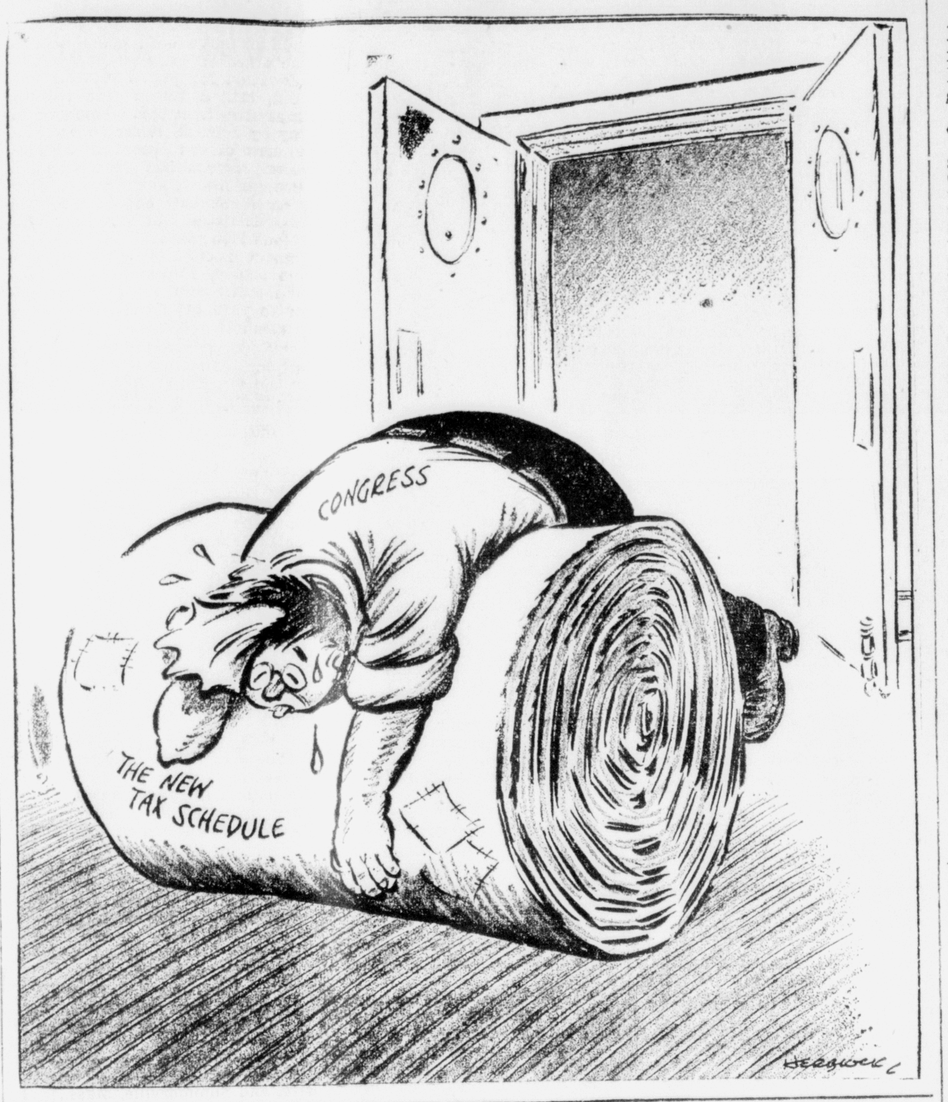

ENGLAND is the headquarters for many of the refugee crowned heads of Europe and among those present is 61-year-old Queen Wilhelmina, ruling sovereign of the Netherlands in exile.

Germany overran the Netherlands in four days last year. Although the invading troops made a desperate attempt to capture the queen, she fled to London on a British warship, May 13, with her key ministers and others of the royal family.

Unlike most refugee monarchs, Wilhelmina still has something to rule over. Although Holland is occupied, there is still a vast, incredibly rich empire six times as large as the mother country with a population of 60 million people.

YEARS AGO IN WARREN

Interesting Items Taken From the Warren Evening Times

In 1921

The Warren Street Railway company deserves credit for the excellent manner in which it handled the large crowd during the past two days of the Warren County Fair. Nine cars were operated on the Conewango avenue line and several thousand passengers were transported to and from the grounds.

Complaint is made by guests of the Carver House that they are awakened at an early hour of the morning by the hucksters who reach the Hickory street curb market at daybreak and engage in loud-mouthed altercations over their respective positions on the market. The market should have better supervision.

John T. Newell, the printer, is engaged in turning out the ballots necessary for the fall primaries. Inasmuch as women are now privileged to vote, the number required is double what it was previous to their obtaining their "rights".

The high school football squad was out to High School Park this morning to fix side lines and erect goal posts for the game with Ludlow Saturday.

President Tibbitts has called a meeting of borough council to consider the question of paving the approach to the Third avenue bridge from Conewango avenue, and Water street from Second to Third avenues.

In 1931

Never in the experience of present-day voters have they been monfronted with the task of choosing from more candidates than this year. One of the unusual features of the primary campaign is the fact that even seasoned politicians hesitate to predict the outcome.

At the present time there are fifty men employed in the construction of the new postoffice building, Liberty street and Third avenue. With the rapid progress which is now being made, the outside work should be almost completed by the time cold weather sets in.

Tomorrow the Blue and White gridiron warriors will get their first baptism of fire when they journeyed to Sheffield to meet the ever-dangerous proteges of Coach Eisenhauer.

The annual picnic and dinner of the employes and directors of the Warren Savings Bank and Trust company, was held at the Outing Club Thursday.

SEEK PLANT OKEH

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10—(AP)—The U. S. Engineers office had under consideration today the application of the Linde Air Products Company to build a water intake pumping station and to dredge a harbor along the Allegheny river at Applewood, opposite Kittanning.

The work would be preliminary to start of a $4,000,000 plant, one of 73 to be built in North America as a defense measure to extract oxygen from the air. The company is a subsidiary of the Union Carbide and Carbon Company and has a 98-acre tract at the site.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By Sigrid Arne

WASHINGTON—For months, here in Washington, there has been much talk about "dramatizing Democracy." Heads have bent over luncheon tables trying to devise methods for reminding Americans of the freedoms they enjoy. Plans have been presented, and pigeon-holed. Idea-tusslers have gathered evenings.

But, so far, nothing official has come of all the worrying.

There was always the other side of the question to consider. Government officials were afraid that any move might look like propaganda. Opponents witheringly remarked that the planners were only adopting Hitler's methods. Non-interventionists feared that any program to dramatize Democracy might lead to war fever.

Then the National League of Women Voters took the bull by the horns. It announced a campaign of its own which is the essence of simplicity. It's really just one slogan, "Win the battle of production." They're spreading that sentence far and wide—on window stickers, on billboards, on auto bumper cards, on letters, in laundry bundles.

War Talk Soft Pedaled

THE League argues: "We're not in the war. So forget that sort of talk. But we are the arsenal for the democracies, so speed up production." They don't give specific advice, like 'save gasoline," or "give aluminum." They just insist on speed.

The reaction has been quite spontaneous. Governors have paraded willingly to microphones to start off the state campaigns. Factory owners have bought the League's fliers to hand out among employees. Cities have donated billboards for the slogan, done up in red-white-and-blue paint. As an amusing climax, a large advertising concern has written to ask the women the secret of their success!

Their key flier says, "Win America's battle of production. More planes, more tanks, more guns, more goods — FASTER. More getting-together, more sacrifices, more taxes and more work—NOW, to keep free peoples FREE."

Covering The Ground

TEXAS women are putting the slogans on match folders. Missouri women are recording production speeches and sending the records out to farm communities. League members on motor trips are dumping handbills in the lobbies of summer hotels. They have invaded labor meetings, Rotary conventions, youth meetings.

In Mexico, Mo., a League wife has induced her aviator husband to trail the slogan from his plane. In dozens of cities League members are giving five-minute talks at neighborhood movies. Morning commuters are handed the printed slogan in their suburban stations. Business houses are putting it in the monthly bills.

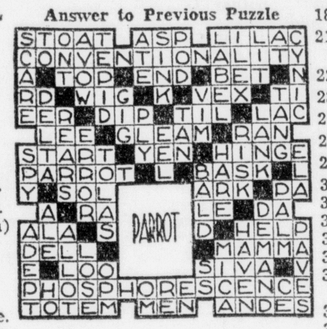

But the woman who seems to hold the laurels at this point is a New Haven, Conn., house-wife who is tied down to her home. So she campaigns by talking to tradesmen who ring her bell. She really cornered the laundry man. He must have troubles of his own, but he's carrying her pamphlets with him on his rounds.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: It was the cold nose of a wandering Kerry blue terrier that warned Pam Quellerton of the approach of Jerry Winthrope, but it was the instinct developed over years of life in Key West that warned Pam against Jerry. For there was no Quellerton money left, only a lovely old house. And Jerry was a "winter man," gay, rich, with nothing to do. And not for Pam, she thought.

Chapter Two

The Bet

JERRY WINTHROPE, on South Beach, had watched Pam go away from him with a distinct sense of dismay. He was not accustomed to being deserted by girls. He turned at length to grin ruefully at a group of tanned young men who had been sunning on a small bandstand, watching him. As they saw Pam trot away they scoffed lightly.

"That's one girl you can't mow down with your fatal charm!" The speaker was a young blonde giant who was tutoring a boy in the neighborhood.

"Oh, yeah?" from Jerry.

"Yeah!" laughed a gilded youth lazing the winter away at Casa Marina. "She doesn't give us a tumble. It's a shame, because her blonde beauty is just the foil my dark good looks need!"

"Treats us northerners as if we were germs or something!" exclaimed Edmund Antoine, who was orchestra leader at the hotel and the current rave of all the winter girls.

"Well, maybe you are!" Jerry hoisted himself gracefully to the platform. "You can't blame a girl for using a little discrimination."

"I supposed you think you're the fair-haired boy!" another scoffed. "That girl wouldn't make a date with a winter man if her life depended on it! She thinks we're dangerous, or something."

"You boys just haven't the approach," Jerry answered lightly.

"Well, we haven't a Kerry Blue, if that's what you mean. But even that"—Antoine was earnest—"won't get you anywhere with that girl. She's winter-man proof! I'll bet you."

"As I said," Jerry retorted with maddening smoothness, "you boys just haven't the approach."

"And I suppose you think you have!"

"I have. I'll take you up on that bet, Antoine. A supper party at Pena's. If you win, I give it. If I win, you give it."

"Accepted." Antoine turned to the others, laughing. "Get set for a champagne supper at Jerry's expense, boys."

"Don't be too sure."

Jerry's statement was met with good-natured jeers.

"I'll have her at the tea dance at Casa Marina tomorrow afternoon," Jerry promised, and once more was answered with friendly jeering.

Invitation

PAM always cut her roses in the morning while they were still silvered with dew. Her scissors had just cut the first bud when she heard steps behind her and was aware of Blaze beside her.

"Blaze has been waiting for you." It was Jerry's voice. Jerry whom Pam had hoped to avoid. She stroked the dog's soft coat, but was too startled to make any reply.

"And, incidentally, I have too," Jerry continued. "Don't tell me that doesn't mean anything to you. He looked at her approvingly. She was enchanting in her dark blue cotton play-suit which she had made herself.

"I'm terribly flattered that Blaze remembered me." She smiled finally. "I like dogs, and Blaze is such an aristocrat. But how do you happen to be in my garden so early in the morning?"

"I've remembered you, too. I'm in your garden waiting for you, lovely lady, because after a whole night I still remember you."

"And I'm supposed to be flattered at that?"

"You should be. It's a tribute. A tribute to your very superior charm and beauty, and all that sort of thing." He spoke lightly, but the words were faintly etched with earnestness.

"All right," she laughed. "Just to please you, I'll say thank you. And now if you don't mind, I'll cut my roses. I've got things that need doing." She would have turned away from him, but Jerry caught her hand. He was suddenly very serious.

"But I do mind, Pam," he said. "Don't send me away. I've just found you."

Pam looked out over the familiar scene. Poinsettias flaming scarlet against white walls. Mareschal-Neil roses rioting along a fence. Palms rustling in salt sea breeze. Spanish lime trees, dark waxy-green in the brilliant sun.

It was all just as it always had been, even to the pungent acrid smell of Cuban breakfast coffee in the air. Everything exactly as she had always known it. Yet Pam had a feeling it should be different.

Jerry Winthrope had spoken to her with tenderness in his voice. Jerry Winthrope had come to her garden to find her. And her heart was a-thrill. But she tried with her words to deny it.

"You'll find dozens of other girls before the winter is over!" she said.

"No, I won't. That's just it. I knew yesterday when Blaze found you. Blaze knew, too. You're not just another girl to us. You're"—he paused as if trying to find the right word—"something else. Something I'd rather tell you when there's a moon. But right now I'd like to tell you that I want to squire you to the tea dance at Casa Marina this afternoon."

"Don't be silly! You don't even know me." But under the gayety of her words her heart was pounding wildly.

"I do know you. You're Pam. And your voice is a celestial lullaby. And your moods are as soft and gentle as a summer breeze. Besides, it's such nice silliness, Pam-lovely. Now will you go?"

Pam looked at him without answering. A Persian cat moved silently along the path to a castor bean plant grown to tree proportion on the winterless island, and sharpened its claws satisfactorily. Jerry's hand at Blaze's collar stayed her instinct to give chase. Pam was finding it hard to say the thing she believed she should.

"Pam!" That tender note was in his voice again. Blaze's nose, cool and damp, touched her hand persuasively. "Will you say something after me?" She met his eyes, a question in her own. "Will you say, 'Yes, Jerry'?"

There was a moment's silence. Then:

"Yes, Jerry," she repeated.

They laughed like happy children and Blaze, catching their mood, capered about, alarming the cat, which climbed up the castor bean tree and jumped to the top rail of the white picket fence, to sit there in composed and dignified safety surveying the trio.

"Now let me cut my roses before the dew is all gone," Pam said in what she hoped was a matter-of-fact voice. "Dew is precious down here, you know, on this coral island where we have so little rain."

Leo Shore

THE water was emerald under the bright sun and the atmosphere so clear you could see to the lighthouse. A boat from Cuba that would be tying up in about an hour at the docks on the other side of the island was like a toy against the skyline. Sea beans, looking like large round horse-chestnuts, swept in with the surf, rolled madly back to the water again.

Pam picked up a perfect one that had been caught in some debris.

"They polish to the most beautiful mahogany," she said.

Jerry took it and slipped it into the pocket of his jacket.

So engrossed were they in their own pleasant companionship that they didn't even glance toward the bandstand where a few sun worshippers had already gathered. The boys stared at the couple walking along the sand so obviously in perfect accord.

"Pam with Jerry!" someone said in surprise.

"That lad is made of horseshoes," said another, watching them intently. "He gets all the breaks."

"It looks as if the supper is on me," Edmund Antoine said. "It's easy to tell when a girl has said yes."

"What a row of pikers we must be!" commented another. "I've been trying to date that girl ever since I've been here, and I've watched every last one of you trying to do the same thing. Jerry comes in and walks off his old man's yacht and does it, just as he's been doing it all his life. What's he got that I haven't?"

But Antoine wasn't listening. He was staring hard at Jerry and Pam and thinking Pam was too lovely. Too sweet and earnest and lovely . . . and Pam, in the pleasant, homey quiet of her big house, was thinking of Leo Shore and, for the first time, missing him. Leo was surgeon at the naval station. His family, like Pam's, had settled in Key West generations before, and he and Pam had been friends ever since she could remember.

If only Leo were here, Pam thought now. He had been called to Washington the week before, with several other officers from the base, relative to future developments at the Key West station. Leo, who was ten years older than Pam, had once told her he loved her. But that was not why Pam missed him. Not why she wished she could talk to him. It was because she had met Jerry, and there was something disturbing about it all. And Leo knew Jerry and Lenore and many of their kind while she, Pamela, had made a point of not knowing winter men, the idle, play-intent sons of the rich.

With Leo near, Pam knew she would feel a little better about her date for tea dancing with Jerry. Leo, out of his sincere friendship for her, would be able to guide her rightly. He was that kind. Pam was thoughtful as she dressed. Jerry and Leo. They stood side by side in her mind. So like and yet so unlike. Both charming and attractive—Jerry a handsome playboy, Leo a useful member of society.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Ed. C. Lowrey, Editor,
Times-Mirror,
Warren, Pa.

Dear Mr. Lowrey:

"Turn about is fair play," but the railroads seem to have forgotten that fact.

About eight years ago the railroads were "up against it" at the bottom of the depression. They were losing money, so they asked their employes to come to the rescue by voluntarily accepting lower wages.

The railroad workers agreed to have 10 percent deducted from their pay envelopes, to help the carriers in their hour of need. These deductions continued for several years, and a total of about $600,000,000.00 was subtracted from the wages of the rail workers. They have never asked that a single penny of this huge sum be restored to them.

Now, instead of losing money, the railroads are reaping large and rapidly increasing profits, because of the defense "boom" and general economic recovery. Naturally, the workers who shared the carriers' poverty at the bottom of the depression believe that they should now share in the railroads' prosperity.

But what happened when the rail employes asked for reasonable wage increases? Did the railroads say one word to remind the public about their workers' voluntary sacrifice? Did they remember it themselves, and reciprocate by dealing with their workers' wage requests in a fairminded way?

No, the railroads flatly refused to raise wages by one single cent, unless they are forced to, and they launched a nation-wide propaganda campaign to prejudice the public against the rail workers' and their requests for higher pay.

That cruel and unjust propaganda, however, cannot conceal facts which are piling up about railroad profits, and which show that the carriers can well afford to share their prosperity with their employes.

Railroad profits rose from an average of $600,000,000 a year during the depression to $924,000,000 in the year ended April 30, 1941, and will go above a billion dollars in the year 1941.

Railroad wage increases are justified by other facts—such as the rising cost of living, the increasing efficiency of the rail workers, and the wage boosts which have already been granted to the workers of other industries.

The railroad employes and their families remember their bitter experiences with the cost of living in the last war period, when rail wage increases always came "too little and too late" to ward off dire hardships.

The same suffering will be experienced in this war and defense period unless the railroads grant the requested wage increases. They will be none too much and will come none too soon.

Very truly yours,
N. B. HULING.

Bridge isn't considered a strenuous game, but at a national tournament, where the players start in on Monday afternoon and play every afternoon and evening for seven straight days, you realize even bridge can be nerve-wearing and tiring.

You might assume, therefore, that champions would have to be huskies who could stand the strain. But Mrs. A. M. Sobel of New York and Mrs. R. C. Young of Philadelphia, rated as the world's two finest woman players, are perhaps the two tiniest women in tournament bridge.

For this reason, one is apt to make the mistake of relaxing when coming to the table to play against either of these girls. But make the tiniest mistake, and you will find out how quickly they pounce upon those tricks and steal them from under your nose.

In today's hand the opponents made a little slip. You can see how costly it proved when Mrs. Young played it in her championship manner.

Sitting South, she won the opening lead with the ace of spades. Two rounds of hearts were led, West discarding a spade. Mrs. Young then led the jack of clubs, which West courageously ducked, hoping East could get in to lead trumps. But after taking his king of clubs, East did not have the foresight to lead a trump, giving up his tenace. Instead, he led a spade.

Mrs. Young discarded the three of diamonds and West took the queen. West returned another spade, which dummy won, South letting go a club. A diamond to the ace put South in to lead a club to ruff.

The diamond king was led, followed by another. East played the nine of hearts but Mrs. Young over-trumped and led another club for dummy to ruff. A fourth diamond lead assured that the seven of trumps would win a trick.

Interest in the National tournament at Asbury Park was greater than ever before. All of the major events established new attendance records.

Perhaps the most thrilled and excited pair in the tournament was Mrs. Mae Rosen and Mrs. Edith Seligman of New York, winners of the women's National pair championship, but this was Mrs. Rosen's first major victory.

Mrs. Frederick Horn of New York, and Mrs. Gussie Planco of Great Neck, L. I., had led the field for the first two rounds, and played the last round against the new champions. It was this round that cost them the tournament.

In the hand shown today, Mrs. Seligman's opening bid of three diamonds was a so-called nuisance bid, but it did not deter North and South from getting into six clubs. The contract was bid and made at many of the tables, but Mrs. Seligman found the killing lead.

Although Mrs. Rosen (East) had never bid the spade suit, Mrs. Seligman could read she was long in spades. It looked as though the only chance to defeat the contract was to cash two spades in a hurry.

Townville Couple Have Anniversary

(Written for the Times-Mirror)

On Sunday, August 31, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Looker celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home near Townville. In the forenoon, the DeJean reunion met with them, with 69 present. At noon a picnic dinner was served under a large tent on the lawn.

On the lawn, near a climbing rose, the bride and groom stood behind two large wedding cakes banked with flowers and had their pictures taken. The second picture included the couple who attended them 50 years ago. After this, Mr. and Mrs. Looker and their attendants, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Ongley, of Rootville, took their places on the front lawn for the renewal of the marriage vows, which was performed by Rev. M. M. Clark, Leslie placing the same ring on Ella's finger that he had placed there 50 years ago.

After the ceremony, the guests watched the cutting of the wedding cakes and viewed the many lovely gifts and flowers presented Mr. and Mrs. Looker during the day. Wedding cakes were presented by the couple's four children and a niece, Miss Hazel Fosburg. The number attending was around 200.

Rain Forces Cardinals And Dodgers Into Doubleheaders

Open Crucial Series With Each Other At St. Louis Tomorrow

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rain falls on the rich and poor alike and it was an impartial storm that washed out both the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday.

Neither team liked it because the downpour created two doubleheaders today—the Dodgers at Chicago and the Phillies at St. Louis—right in the threshold of the vitally-important three-game clash of the National League leaders with each other.

The weatherman could crush the Cardinals. Trailing by three games they need every chance of catching up. If anything prevents today's encounters they will be wiped off the schedule.

As the teams stand now, Brooklyn has won 88 and lost 47, compared with St. Louis' 84 and 49.

If all contests are played, and St. Louis spurts to capture 16 of its remaining 21 games for a total of 100 victories, Brooklyn still could win by taking 13 of its remaining 19. In that case the final standings would be Brooklyn 101-53; St. Louis 100-54.

If the Dodgers were rained out of two engagements, they would have to take only 11 and still could lose six to beat the Cards' 100-54 in percentage.

If the Cardinals were knocked out of two games, they would have to win 16 and lose only three to beat a Brooklyn finish of 101-53.

You can use any combination you want to, but it all proves that any games rained out of the schedule now means Brooklyn has to win less and St. Louis must win more.

Except for the contests involving the two National League leaders all other games yesterday were reeled off on schedule.

Babe Young hit his 23rd and 24th homers to earn a 4-2 victory for the ew York Giants over the Pittsburgh Pirates. His first clout tied the score in the eighth and his second came with one on in the tenth to win the game.

The Cincinnati Reds clustered six runs in the third inning to bag a free-swinging battle from the Boston Braves, 9-7, for Bucky Walters' 17th win.

In the American League Bobby Feller obtained his 23rd triumph with ninehit pitching, 13-7. The A's contributed five errors toward the Tribe's attack, which included home runs by Jeff Heath, Lou Boudreau and Jim Hegan, a rookie.

Dick Newsom pitched four-hit ball to shut out the Detroit Tigers, 6-0, for the Boston Red Sox while the Washington Senators whipped the Chicago White Sox, 7-2, last night.

WANT SECOND RAISE

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10—(AP)—The Lawrenceville and Northside Lodges of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee recommended in a two-day convention, that S. W. O. C. contracts be reopened with a demand for an additional raise of 10 cents an hour boost in pay.

They also proposed that June 17, birthday of Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, be made a holiday in all steel mills.

ASKS CHECKUP

Harrisburg, Sept. 10—(AP)—Local Selective Service boards were asked by state headquarters today to use "all means of investigation at their disposal" before reporting cases of delinquency. Many of the cases, said Dr. William Mather Lewis, state director, are due to the carelessness of registrants in reporting changes of address, or ignorant of the law requiring them to do so.

N. B. A. SOLONS PLAN TO STOP MONOPOLIZING

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sept. 10—(AP)—Mike Jacobs, the boxing baron of New York, recently signed a five-year contract with Sammy Angott, the lightweight champion, and thereby gave the National Boxing Association some ammunition for its announced warfare against "monopolistic control" of boxing.

The Association, holding its annual convention here, placed Angott on the suspended list yesterday and said there's where he'll stay until he fights. The organization said he failed to abide by its rule that a titlcholder must defend his crown against a top ranking foe within one year. But that in itself wasn't expected to prove much of a hindrance to Angott since he is booked to go against Lew Jenkins in New York October 31.

While the delegates omitted names in their resolution, they decided to seek evidence to break the practice of "monopolistic control which ensnares all fighters of prominence and makes them subject to a single promoter." They said they regarded the practice as an "insidious influence x x x contrary to the laws of the state of New York, in which most of these inimical acts are countenanced, encouraged and nurtured." Until the resolution was voted upon, the delegates had spent most of their time denouncing Jacobs. They asserted he had a monoply on boxing "with the aid of the New York State Athletic Commission."

The Association planned to adjourn after a brief business session today. Abe J. Greene of Paterson, N. J., was expected to be elected president. Chicago, New Orleans, St. Louis and the California Athletic Commission were considered for the 1942 convention.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

DRAGONS HAVE WEAK POINTS AND CAN INCREASE POWER IMMENSELY, BUT OWN MANY ASSETS ALL TO THEIR ADVANTAGE

With two games already under their belt, the high school Dragons have shown their strength and also their weak points, and while we don't pretend to have noticed all the faults or assets that they may have shown, this column will be used today in pointing out some of the more obvious weaknesses that, if corrected, will give the Blue and White half again as much power as they now have. For instance, the ends haven't learned to perfection how to run the field on a punt, evade one or two blockers and to at least force the receiver into a tackle as quickly as possible. Also, the terminals can improve on pass receiving, and in this department we'll say they have, to some extent, judging from their two appearances thus far. As for the backs, most of them are good runners if they get into the open, but all of them can learn to pick out their openings faster and this corner believes that they will. Possibly the weakest parts of the team offensively, and yet the mightiest part on the ground defense, are the guards, tackles and center. For some reason, except through the weak side of Youngsville's line, the Dragon forward wall has been able to inflict the slightest dent. Their average yardage gained by rushing show this, and even against the Eagles the backs didn't go too far except once or twice, mainly because when they hit the line they found an immovable object—one or more of them which had sifted through the inner part of the Blue and White forward wall.

But while these things are their main weaknesses, here are some assets. The Dragons play inspirational ball, heads-up at all times, and they are aggressive as a whole. Never knowing who will make up the starting lineup from game to game, they can't afford to loaf, forcing them to hustle every minute. There are around thirty-five boys who might expect a call to dress for the next game, this week and every week, upon a minute's notice, and there are also thirty-five boys entertaining the idea of wearing that coveted "W" award on their sweater at the close of the season. Without a letterman playing on the squad, every man is rated evenly and he realizes the fact. There is no coaching on the field, other than advice sent in from Leidig via a substitute. This makes for better playing all around, and all these things add up to making a squad from green timber into as strong a team as Warren has known in scholastic grid tussles in recent years. And perhaps the greatest asset is that Warren High is noted for outstanding fighting spirit. Ahead or behind, the Dragons always play football every minute of the game, whereas many other surrounding schools are great when winning, but just can't play tiddle-dee-winks if they get behind. This, in this writer's mind, is probably the greatest point in their favor unless it is surpassed, possibly, by the fact that Warren High gridders don't coast along on press clippings such as has been the case in other schools throughout the state in other years.

Coffin corner cannonade . . . Grove City College has cancelled their football squad's training which was slated to start a week before the college year opens . . . Forty-five members of last year's outfit invited to answer the call September 10, were notified to stay at home and enjoy themselves until school opens the fourteenth, due to infantile paralysis scare . . . And the Grovers first game has been cancelled because Clarion Teachers were the opponents for the September 27 date, and the teachers don't go back to their books now until September 22, also because of the polio epidemic . . . The Red Jackets must be in for a great season . . . Tickets are going so fast the entire lot is expected to be sold before Sunday's game, a nice crowd is on hand nightly to watch the boys practice on Beaty Field, and you don't have to walk far to get in deep discussion over the chances afforded the Jackets, or the sizing up of their strength, or is this player good and that one too, and the whole town is beginning to take on the atmosphere known to Bradford and Jamestown during the PONY League baseball season . . . A crowd, if the weather is nice, of 2,000 is predicted to be at Russell Field Sunday for the opener.

Predicting Record Throng For Jacket Opener Next Sunday

A crowd, larger than ever to watch the opener of Warren's previous editions of Red Jacket teams, is expected to be on hand Sunday afternoon for the opening kickoff at 2:30 when the local champions of western Pennsylvania battle last year's Pittsburgh district champions, the strong Garfield Eagles, greatest semi-pro negro aggregation in the state this season.

For many reasons the throng is expected to be increased. First, because of the fact that with more people, many on defense orders, there is this year more money in circulation and more sports fans are sharing it. Secondly, other years the booster attraction with which the Red Jackets always teed off, found the admission prices boosted to a point where it was a bit costly for many average fans. Other reasons are that the Garfield Eagles gained a reputation around the Smokey City last year of being the most feared eleven in the area, and the best reason is that this community is a great football town.

With season tickets being sold at a remarkable pace, many followers are interested enough in the team that they're coming to drills at Beaty Feild, the town has gone football berserk with as much enthusiasm over the chances and the fortunes of the Jackets as Flatbush and Bronx fans express for the beloved Bums and Bombers, respectively.

Garfield brings an experienced squad made up of some of the outstanding Negro football stars from college gridirons, and the Jackets will match them with heroes of the collegiate sport in their lineup also.

The Eagles will carry a heavy team, but the locals may outweigh them to some extent. However, the visitors boast a reputation of having the fastest backfield and ends in and around Pittsburgh on the sandlots today.

The game will be played under popular admission prices, the same as last year, and shapes up to be the finest lid-lifter booked for the locals in recent seasons. Starting lineups will be announced later in the week.

MEET TONIGHT

City League bowlers will meet this evening at the Arcade Alleys to organize their league for the coming campaign. The meeting is slated for eight o'clock and all interested bowlers planning to attend are asked to be prompt.

Betty Jameson Upset In Women's Golf Play

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 10—(AP)—The startling elimination of Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Texas, a top-heavy favorite to gain her third straight women's national golf title, failed to bolster the hopes of the lesser lights today as they faced the dread task of two rounds of match play.

When Miss Jameson bowed to the surprising Janet Younker of White Plains, N. Y., by 1 up, after having a four-hole lead at the halfway point of their first rounder yesterday, the dethroned Texas Queen's robes were draped over the shoulders of Mrs. Betty Hicks Newell of Long Beach, Cal.

Mrs. Newell convinced all her remaining rivals that she was of championship calibre when she raced through 11 holes in three under par to overwhelm Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., 9 and 7.

POSTPONE TRIAL

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 10.—(AP)—Because of the illness of defense counsel, the trial of John Jose, South Union township tax collector charged with embezzlement of tax funds was postponed until the December term of court by Judge S. John Morrow.

Sports Round-up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 10.—(The Special News Service)—The girls are making their own news in the women's golf at Brookline . . . . Besides playing in the tournament, Dorothy Kirby (Atlanta Constitution) and Betty Hicks Newell (Long Beach Press-Telegram) are reporting it for their papers . . . Minnesota already has sent out an SOS for more tickets for the Washington game September 27 at Seattle. The first allotment of 2,000 is about gone . . . The Indians, who played the Tigers on Tommy Bridges Day, all contributed their dimes to help buy a gift for Tom . . . Nothing like being obliging . . . . The Thorncliffe race track in Canada has special mutuel windows to collect and pay off in U. S. dough . . . Even Bill Terry isn't arguing about the Dodgers being in the league this year since Brooklyn's games at the Polo Grounds drew 313,147 customers and the Giants cut in on 220,646 admissions at Ebbets Field . . . Guys who knew Lou Nova in college weren't surprised at his goofy demonstrations of his "cosmic punch." One of them recalls how Lou used to go around with his arm in a sling to rest it so he could throw the javelin better on Saturday.

To Probe Railroad Dispute

troversies involving the railways. But the current strike situation is so broad and important that the chief executive decided that five men should be named. They are to be persons "not pecuniarily or otherwise interested" in any of the unions or carriers, and they will be paid $75 each a day, plus expenses.

Attached to the proclamation was a nine-page list of the carriers involved in the dispute.

In a vigorous, full-time resumption of the multiple duties of his office, the president tried today to forget the personal tragedy of the death of his mother.

Matters of both domestic and international significance once again command Mr. Roosevelt's attention. They had been shoved into the background from the time his mother, Sara Delano Roosevelt, died Sunday at her home beside the Hudson until she was buried late yesterday in the family plot behind St. James Episcopal church.

Mr. Roosevelt ordered his special train made up today for a return trip to Washington, where he could come to grips once more with with major problems in the field of foreign affairs.

Postponed from Monday to tomorrow night by his mother's death was a radio speech tagged in advance as of "major importance".

There was reason to believe that the chief executive would analyze the entire world situation, perhaps with special emphasis on the battle of the Atlantic.

Allegheny Co. Independents Are Victorious

Common Pleas Judge Michael A. Musmanno led the county Democratic ticket with a tremenduous majority over his opponent for Superior Court bench nomination, Paul W. Mahady.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and Judge Thomas M. Marshall were the two Republican judicial candidates holding tenaciously to seventh and eight places in the Democratic primary. Allegheny will elect eight county judges in November.

Park, who enjoyed the backing of both the Republican organization and insurgents, led the ticket of Republican judicial nominees.

On the other hand, Attorney Arthur L. McLaughlin, Jr., favorite of CIO unions who was rejected by the Democratic slatemakers, appeared likely to win one of the eight Republican judgeship nominations.

Robert Garland, "father of daylight saving time," campaigning for the Pittsburgh city council seat he held from 1911 to 1939, led the Republican council ticket.

Fayette gave its common pleas Judge W. Russell Carr a landslide vote over Judge Samuel E. Shull of Stroudsburg for the Democratic Supreme Court nomination.

of mouth seeds of dissension were being sown in British "pubs" and factories.

The charge is heard here, the source said, that the United States is trying to use the lease-lend program to bar Britain from exporting anything so that the United States can steal all British foreign markets, thus throwing British labor out of jobs after the war.

On the other hand in the United States, it was said, charges are made that Britain was accepting lease-lend goods and then sending British goods to South America to steal United States trade.

FIRE AT CONNELLSVILLE

Connellsville, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Fire, started by the explosion of an acetylene torch, swept the block-long Harry Dull storage warehouse on Peach street near the downtown section of Connellsville today. The fire started shortly before noon and still was burning fiercely two hours later.

Exciting Battles Reported

Superior Court. Challenging the endorsement were Judge Samuel E. Shull of Monroe county, for Supreme Court, and Paul W. Mahady of Westmoreland county for Superior Court.

6498 precincts, Parker (R) 420,770; Compton (R) 249809.

Included are all of 1318 Philadelphia precincts.

For Superior Court 6402 of 8139 precincts in Pennsylvania gave: Musmanno (D) 310383; Mahady (R) 90166.

6498 precincts Dale (R) 201,498; Kenworthey (R) 443436.

Included are all of 1318 Philadelphia precincts.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia followed the general state trend in support for the committee-backed candidates for the two appellate court posts, but Democrats in both cities turned in a stronger vote than did the Republicans.

Extra interest in the voting was provided in 96 communities which held local option referenda, and the general trend of results in those fights was a change in status in one out of every seven municipalities voting.

In the first 46 communities reporting there were nine which changed from "wet" to dry and five towns or townships voted to permit retail sale of either liquor or beer, or both.

In the 22 third class cities which elected mayors, incumbents had the edge in winning nominations, but at least two—James Gold of Monessen, and Kenneth J. English of Pittston—were defeated for Republican honors. In Uniontown, where the office was declared vacant after Mayor William J. Crowe entered the military service, John W. White won the Republican nomination and Russell E. Umbel the Democratic.

Sitting judges also had it comparatively easy for at least one nomination. Opposition in the general election was lined up in the Erie, Luzerne and Columbia-Montour, however, as opposing organizations were able to split the nominations with incumbents. Judge J. Orin Waite, Erie county orphans court, gained the Republican nomination, but was defeated for the Democratic place on the November ballot by William Carney.

Judge Andrew Hourigan, former law partner of Governor James won the Republican nomination in Luzerne county for the orphans court post to which the executive appointed him, but the Democratic organization nominated its own candidate, John Hilary Bonin of Hazleton, a former Republican. President Judge Benjamin R. Jones of Luzerne faces November opposition from Democrat J. Harold Flannery, a representative in congress.

Veteran Judge Alfred E. Swoyer of Wayne county was defeated for both nominations by Clarence E. Bodie in the principal upset in the judgeship races.

In Philadelphia, where a surprise sticker campaign was started yesterday to nominate Victor E. Moore as a Democratic candidate for mayor, election officials were instructed not to tally the votes.

The city is now acting under an acting mayor because of the death of the late Mayor Robert E. Lamberton. A question of whether a mayor will be elected at the November election is pending in the courts. Bernard Samuel, a Republican, is acting mayor.

In Dauphin county the Republi- victory for candidates backed by M. Harvey Taylor, former G. O. P. state chairman, over those favored in a poll of the County Bar Association. The nominees were President Judge William M. Hargest, who as a sitting judge was not considered in the poll; Rep. Robert E. Woodside, youthful Republican floor leader in the state house, and J. Paul Rupp. The Democratic nominees were J. Dress Pannell, former orphans court judge; J. Douglas M. Royal, and former State Senator George Kunek.

The Dauphin contests were regarded as important because that court has jurisdiction in commonwealth cases, testing new legislation and in suits against the state, for which the jurists receive additional pay.

New York, Sept. 10—(AP)—Stocks settled into a slightly lower range today after a brief try at recovery in early proceedings.

Rubbers and store stocks were among the resistant spots near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of about 550,000 shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Sept. 10—(AP)—Wheat prices tumbled almost three cents a bushel in early dealings today with other grains off one to three cents.

Soybeans broke as much as 5⅝ cents.

Heavy selling of wheat was attributed chiefly to the Morgenthau statement urging release of surplus farm commodities now being held off the market and increased imports of Canadian wheat as two items in a program to halt inflationary price advances.

Opening ⅞-2¼ lower. Sept. 1.18¾-1.18, Dec. 1.23¼-1.22, wheat later rallied. Corn started ½-¾ lower, Dec. 84½-84, May 88½-¾.

DRAFT BOARDS TO CLAMP DOWN ON MARRIAGES

The mere fact that a young man is married no longer is sufficient cause for his being excused from military service under the Selective Service act, it was announced today by members of Warren county's two draft boards following a meeting held earlier in the week.

In the past, it was pointed out, the two local boards have been very lenient in regard to marriages and in practically all cases, the time of the marriage was not considered in granting 3-A classifications to men within the draft ages.

According to regulations received by the local boards about July 1st, as well as information received more recently from Selective Service headquarters, actual dependency must now be shown by all draft registrants in order to be given the deferred classification.

Where the draft boards are satisfied that a marriage has been consumated for the principal purpose of avoiding military service, the individual will not be classified in 3-A but will be placed in 1-A and made subject to immediate call.

Because of the more stringent regulations, members of the two local draft boards are reviewing all cases where draft age men have been married since about May 1st. Where it is found that the marriages were to escape the draft, the men will be called to service.

Deferments will not be granted unless the boards are absolutely satisfied that the marriages were the result of plans made some time previously. The burden of proof, it was stated, will be on the draft registrants.

Borough is Visited By Terrific Storm During Early Hours

One of the hardest storms in months visited the borough between four and five o'clock, which was accompanied by terrific wind and almost incessant lightning and thunder.

In most homes in the borough lights flashed and citizens were busy closing and fastening windows.

Many shade trees in the borough were damaged, and some blown completely over, while a number of signs were reported to have been damaged.

There was little or no interruption to communications and power lines.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Football Fricassel

Paul Brown, the Ohio State coach, says he learned a valuable lesson while visiting Tom Henrich in the Yankees' dressing room this summer Joe DiMaggio had dropped an easy fly and Brown was waiting for Joe McCarthy to say something, but there wasn't a word . . . Finally Paul asked when the roof-raising would start and one of the Yanks explained: "He never says anything about a physical error, but if any of us had been caught out of position we'd have heard plenty" . . . . Carolina football fans say you can look for something to pop when Tennessee plays Furman a week from Saturday and some will even bet you Furman will knock off the Vols . . . Dave Queen, U. of California center, majors in criminology . . . He ought to be good on penalties . . . Leonard Staggs, the Nashville kid who had the college scouts so excited, is going to Copiah-Lincoln Junior College for a year or so before heading for the big time . . .The gridiron situation is getting so serious in the southwest that Frank Kimbrough has sold his 13 bird dogs so he can pay more attention to his coaching job at Baylor . . . And Texas coaches are agin' the pre-season all-star high school games because they make things too easy for outside talent hunters . . . "At least," moaned one, "we ought to make these outsiders tour Texas hunting the kids."

Brother Joe

When Joe DiMaggio recently paid a visit to Father Connor of St. John's church in Fairview, N. J., a wide-eyed kid was brought in for a look at the great DiMaggio. Trying to put the boy at ease, Father Connor asked him, "Who's the greatest baseball player in the world today?" the kid hesitated a while, then blurted out, "I'll tell you. The great player in the world is Joe's brother—Dominic."

CIVIL SERVICE

The Civil Service Commission announces the following examinations:

Radio Technician

Recently the Commission advertised the need for radio technicians. The examination is now announced, under the title of Radio Mechanic Technician. Persons interested in this work who have not already filed their applications, are urged to apply at once. The jobs pay from $1,440 to $2,300 a year. Full-time paid experience in technical radio work or the completion of appropriate study in radio is required. Applications will be rated at the Commission's Washington office as soon as practicable after receipt until November 6, 1941.

Technical and Scientific Aids

The salaries for these positions range from $1,440 to $2,000 a year. For the lower grades, the optional branches are radio, explosives, chemistry, physics, metallurgy, and fuels; for the Senior grade, radio and explosives only. Applicants must have had high-school study unless they can substitute for this requirement technical experience in addition to that prescribed for each grade. Paid technical or scientific experience is also necessary. Persons who have completed appropriate defense training courses or college study may substitute this study for a part, or—where appropriate—all, of the prescribed experience. Applications will be accepted until June 30, 1942.

Full information as to the requirements for these examinations, and application forms, may be obtained from W. U. McMichael, Secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, at the post office or customhouse in this city, or from the Secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, at any first—or second-class post office.
